

Argentina asked for troops to stop El Salvador supplies

NEW YORK (AP) — Reagan administration officials have approached the government of Argentina about having that country infiltrate combat forces into Nicaragua, ABC News reports.

Basing its report on an unidentified congressional source, ABC reported Wednesday that the purpose of the infiltration would be to help choke off supplies allegedly being sent to rebels in El Salvador from Cuba through Nicaragua. If all went well, the troops might mount a counter-revolution against Nicaragua's ruling leftist junta, ABC said.

The report said the combat troops would wear no uniforms but would be infiltrating as Latin American freedom fighters and would operate in guerrilla fashion.

A spokesman at the Argentine Embassy in Washington called the report "completely an invention." State Department spokesman Alan Romberg refused comment, but added that lack of a response should not be read as "an implicit confirmation."

At the White House, spokesman David Gergen refused comment and then cautioned reporters against reading a confirmation or denial into his no comment.

Asked if the United States would engage in overt or covert action, or join with another nation, to overthrow a government now in place, Gergen replied that "policy statements" have been made on the issue in the past and that he would not try to repeat them "off the top of my head."

Meanwhile, Capt. Roberto Sanchez, a Nicaraguan Army spokesman, said Wednesday the Sandinista government had

"significant evidence" that rebels inside Nicaragua have received logistic support from elements of the Argentine military.

In an interview in Managua, Nicaragua, Sanchez said rebels were being advised by Argentinian officers. He did not, however, present any evidence of the Argentinian role.

On Tuesday, Secretary of State Alexander Haig said the United States, in cooperation with its Latin American allies, would do "whatever is necessary" to block a victory by leftists in El Salvador.

In Senate testimony, Haig said the administration was "considering a whole range of options — political, economic and security — in response to Cuban intervention in this hemisphere."

This week, the State Department also stepped up its verbal attack against leftist Nicaragua, denouncing it as "a base for the export of subversion and armed intervention throughout Central America."

The sources, however, said the intervention of other countries in the political turmoil of Central America could draw in other nations and end up spreading the conflict throughout Latin America.

One informed source said the Argentinians have a military training mission in El Salvador, totalling about 50 men. However, El Salvador's ambassador to the United States, Ernesto Rivas Gallont, denied the presence of any Argentinian military trainers.

GYROS

(pronounced YEAR-OS)

Food fun for everyone

GYROS is a lean blend of specially selected meats. It is lightly seasoned and cooked to sear the outside so that the juice and flavor are sealed inside. The meat is cooked to order on the KRONOMATIC® broiler which gives it that "Charcoal-Like" flavor. Served as a sandwich with Pita bread, and fresh tomatoes, onions and special sauce.
