

Gymnasts to face Spokane CC

It would be easy to say that the Oregon women's gymnastics team will be looking ahead when they face Spokane Community College at McArthur Court Saturday night.

In fact, it's probably true. "We're probably looking through this meet to the Shanico Cup," admits Oregon assistant coach Kurt Krichko. The Ducks will face second-ranked Oregon State and top-ranked Utah at Corvallis on February 19. "We'd like to score 140 in that one — that's our goal."

A 140 score would be a school record. Meanwhile, Oregon may have to do without Sara Gustafson in the meet against Spokane CC. Gustafson tore ligaments in her small finger on the right hand during Oregon's Bay Area road trip and cannot put pressure on it; she is considered questionable for the meet.

The Bay Area trip drew mixed reactions from Krichko. The Ducks disposed of San Francisco State easily, but finished third behind Stanford and USC on Saturday before settling for second place in a three-way meet with USC and California on Sunday.

"I was pleased that we scored our highest total of the season (136.80) against a team like San Francisco State, and we had our highest halfway mark of the season (70.45) on Saturday. But I was a little disappointed not to finish with that consistency, and then I think we were a little flat (a 132.80) on Sunday."

Of the meet this weekend, Krichko remarked, "We're looking at a score of 138.0. We're gonna throw a few new tricks, but we're really looking at next week."
