ARTESIAN WINTER SOLSTICE

Rumor has it the Artesian work ethic is especially evident on this, the shortest day of the year.

Late at night on this date, Artesians emerge from their lairs, carrying gallons of pure artesian brewing water for Olympia

As the days are getting shorter the evenings are getting longer. This leaves more time for you "Ducks" to relax and enjoy Artesian Winter Solstice and Olympia Beer. This is especially true if you've just finished mid-term exams.

So invite some friends over, pop a few Oly's, and try whistling a chorus or two of "Moon Over Miami."

Beer. A quick head count is then taken.

Once it's been established that everyone's present, they begin a long, long trek to a clandestine rendezvous where their water is collected and sent off to the brewery. On the way back, they pray for rain and gargle at the moon.

An anonymous source once reported spotting a few Artesians whistling "Moon Over Miami" on the return trip. That seems unlikely.

Most people agree Artesians don't know "Moon Over Miami."

Soviet ship sinks; 33 feared dead

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia (AP) — Fifty-foot waves sank a Soviet freighter in the icy North Atlantic Tuesday, leaving 33 dead or missing and raising the number of feared fatalities to 117 in the storm-lashed area in two days.

The world's biggest oil rig, the Ocean Ranger, capsized Monday 240 miles east of Newfoundland, leaving one man drowned and 83 missing and feared dead.

On Tuesday, the freighter Mekhanik Tarasov went down 65 miles further east.

The Halifax Search and Rescue Center said 15 bodies were recovered from the freighter, 18 people were missing and four or five were rescued from the 4,262-ton container ship.

It said two ships were hunting for survivors, that another ship and a plane were heading to the scene but that freezing conditions made it too dangerous for helicopters to fly and that more blinding snow was expected.

The Mekhanik Tarasov, enroute to Europe from Trois-Rivieres, Quebec, had developed a 45-degree list overnight in 40 knot winds, heavy seas and freezing spray. Its cargo was not immediately known.

The area was east of the drilling site in the Hibernia field where the storm capsized the $120 million Ocean Ranger Monday morning.

Mobil Oil Canada Ltd., which leased the Japanese-built rig from a Louisiana company, said the crew included 15 Americans, 52 Newfoundlanders, 16 men from other parts of Canada and one Briton.

It was the second highest toll in the history of offshore drilling, exceeded only by the loss of 123 men in the capsizing of the rig Alexander Kielland in the North Sea on March 27, 1980.
