FBI surveillance of colleges detailed

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — The FBI conducted surveillance at 15 Iowa colleges for more than 20 years, focusing on black students, women's rights' groups and others, the Des Moines Register reported Sunday.

In a copyright story, the newspaper said details of the spying is contained in more than 700 pages of heavily censored government documents released under the U.S. Freedom of Information Act, on a request from the Register.

The documents, dating from 1957 to 1979, show that black students were frequently subjects of FBI investigations, the paper said. One 1970 memo said all groups "organized to project the demands of black students... are to be subjects of discreet preliminary inquiries. These inquiries are to be... carefully conducted to avoid criticism."

The documents also show that the women's rights movement was watched on campuses, that the FBI often used informants within universities to aid its surveillance and that some students were subjects of the FBI's counterintelligence program, COINTEL-PRO.

In 1969, an agent reported to then-FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover that women attending the University of Iowa had protested for better access to contraceptives. The agent described the students as "girls seeking sexual fulfillment outside the sacred bonds of marriage."

Several top university officials said they were surprised to learn the FBI had spied on their campuses.

"This is news to me," said Wilbur Layton, vice president for student affairs at ISU from 1967 to 1976. "The federal government was awfully insecure and uneasy at that time."

Expulsion measure continues in Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The punishment recommended for Abscam felon Harrison Williams has been described as the Senate equivalent of the death penalty, and it has been invoked only rarely.

The finality of the sanction weighs heavily as senators resume debate Monday for the third day on whether to expel the 62-year-old New Jersey Democrat, convicted in a bribery-conspiracy case.

The Senate has expelled only 15 members in its 193-year history, most of them for collaborating with the Confederacy in the Civil War.

Records show expulsion proceedings were begun against 13 senators since the last member was ousted in 1862, but each effort stopped short of expulsion.

Williams, a 23-year veteran of the Senate, was sentenced last month to three years in prison for agreeing to trade his influence for financial backing in a mining venture in which he had a hidden interest. The financial backer he dealt with was an undercover FBI agent and the meetings were taped by the government.
