Military candidate leads in Guatemala

GUATEMALA CITY

Gen. Angel Anibal Guevara, the military-backed candidate in Guatemala's presidential election, maintained a firm vote lead Monday, but his three civilian rivals claimed fraud and said they would challenge the results.

All four candidates are right of center politically, and leftists boycotted Sunday's balloting. Guevara, former defense minister in the military-dominated government, was getting 37 percent of the votes, but it appeared he would not obtain the absolute majority required for election.

The outgoing Congress will name the president from the top two vote-getters if no candidate captures 51 percent of the vote, and Guevara, with the largest number of votes, was considered the likely victor in legislative balloting for a four-year term.

With 383,365 votes counted, Guevara had 143,440 votes, or 37 percent. Second with 105,410 votes, or 27 percent, was Mario Sandoval Alarcon of the far-right National Liberation Movement. Alejandro Maldonado Aguirre, a Christian Democrat and the most moderate of the four candidates, had 96,021, or 25 percent. Gustavo Anzueto Vielman of the Authentic Nationalist Center was winning just over 10 percent with 38,489.

The fill-up of hydrazine and nitrogen tetroxide fuels into the spacecraft's maneuvering and steering systems was the last major hurdle to be overcome before technicians begin gearing up for an actual launch.

Saudi Arabia cuts oil production

NEW YORK

Saudi Arabia's decision to cut its daily oil production by 1 million barrels will not halt the decline in world oil prices unless other OPEC members also agree to decrease production, analysts said Monday.

Saudi Arabia, which produces more than 40 percent of OPEC's oil, announced over the weekend that it had cut production to 7.5 million barrels in March.

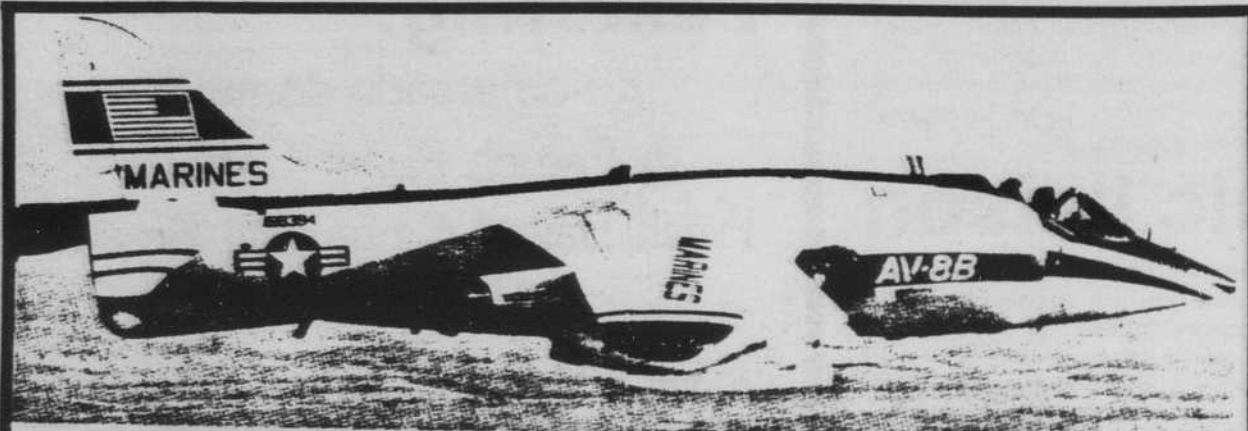

At the same time, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries said it would hold an emergency meeting March 19 in Vienna to discuss weakening oil prices.

"This in itself will not make a difference," said J.G. Stabback, an energy specialist at the Royal Bank of Canada in Calgary, Alberta, of the Saudi move.

Stabback and other analysts said they expect the Saudis to press for — and receive — concessions from other OPEC members to limit their production.

A cut of 1 million barrels a day in Saudi Arabia's output will have little effect on the huge oversupply of oil on world markets, analysts said, because the Saudis' production already was falling below the official ceiling of 8.5 million barrels by at least 500,000 barrels a day.

Propellants loaded aboard Columbia

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla.

Launch pad crews completed minor tasks Monday following a trouble-free loading of volatile propellants aboard the space shuttle Columbia.

"We are looking now to preliminary preparations for beginning of the launch countdown Thursday, March 18," said spokesman Dick Young at Kennedy Space Center.

The five-day countdown leads into the March 22 liftoff for Columbia's third flight, a seven-day mission designed primarily to test temperature extremes on the reusable spacecraft and its
