

Belushi, 33, laid to rest

Source says overdose caused death

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass. AP — With Dan Aykroyd riding to the gravesite on a motorcycle and James Taylor mournfully singing "That Lonesome Road," comedian John Belushi was buried Tuesday in a gentle snow on an island off Cape Cod.

Meanwhile in Los Angeles, where Belushi died last Friday, reports surfaced that his death may have been caused by a cocaine overdose.

"We can hear the call of his solitary warning: 'Wise up!'" the Rev. Ilija Katre of Boston's Holy Trinity Church told the 200 friends and relatives who gathered at a church on Martha's Vineyard for a 45-minute requiem service and brief eulogy.

The phrase, "Wise up!" was a trademark of the 33-year-old Belushi, whose manic comedy made him a star of TV's "Saturday Night Live" and then such motion pictures as "Animal House," filmed in Eugene and on the University campus.

Among the mourners who gathered on the overcast, chilly morning at the Congregational church were Belushi's wife, Judith, his parents, comedian Bill Murray and producer Lorne Michaels, who worked with Belushi on the hit NBC late-night comedy show

Lee Salters, Belushi's New York publicist, said the comedian chose to be buried on the island where he owned a summer home because "it was the one place he really slept well."

"Seriously, he's always really loved it here," said Salter.

The funeral service was performed by two Albanian Orthodox priests with soft organ music and the smell of incense in the small, traditional New England church. Belushi's parents emigrated from Albania.

The Los Angeles Times reported Tuesday that a source in the coroner's office said Belushi died of complications from a cocaine overdose. ABC News also reported that sources said a drug overdose killed him, and said the drug was "probably cocaine."

The Los Angeles coroner's office declined to comment on the reports, saying only that the autopsy and other tests have been inconclusive.

Belushi's nude body was found Friday on a bed in a $200-a-day bungalow he had rented at the Chateau Marmont Hotel in Los Angeles. He was in California to film a comedy, "Noble Rot."

ABC also said Belushi, a heavy smoker, was believed to have been suffering from a respiratory disease.

Boyce faces robbery charges

Seattle AP — Convicted spy Christopher Boyce was indicted Tuesday by a federal grand jury on five counts of bank robbery and six counts of unlawful possession of a firearm.

Boyce is accused of robbing five banks in Western Washington between January and July of 1981, said Gene Anderson, U.S. attorney for Western Washington.

Almost $25,000 was taken in the bank robberies in Bremerton, Everett, Bellingham, Bellevue, and Seattle, Anderson said.

In January, Boyce was indicted by a federal grand jury in Boise on charges of conspiracy to rob eight banks in Idaho, Montana and eastern Washington.

Boyce, 29, was convicted in 1977 of selling CIA spy satellite information to the Soviet Union. He was sentenced to 40 years in prison, but escaped from the medium-security Federal Correctional Institution in Lompoc, Calif. He remained at large for 19 months until his capture in Port Angeles, Wash. on Aug. 21, 1981.

Federal officials have said Boyce used the money from the bank robberies to support himself during his freedom.

Boyce received an additional three-year sentence late last month in Los Angeles for the escape.
