Forbes will lead the Ducks in the 5,000 and 10,000, and Irene Griffith — if she stays healthy — and transfer Sandy Dickerson — the national community college cross country champion from Lane Community College, will both contribute in those two events.

In the throwing events, junior Sally Harmon, who won the national javelin title last spring, and Florida State transfer Lynda Hughes, who is ranked third in the nation in the javelin, should give the Ducks the best group of javelin throwers in the country.

The discus competition will be in good hands with Karen McDonald and Quenna Beasley ranked ninth and 18th in the nation, respectively.

In the shot put, Beasley is the one to look for. Others Heinonen can look to for additional points in the throws are Andrea Heilman and Melanie Morrison

Leann Warren, the AIAW 1981 Athlete of the Year, is the 800 and 1500 meter national champion in the shot and discus, and Karen Martin in the javelin.

In the sprints, hurdles and jumps, junior Lexie Miller will lead the way. Miller is the school record holder in both the 100 and 400-meter hurdles with times of 13.67 and 57.82, respectively, along with a record leap of 19-9½ in the long jump.

"I think we'll do really well. Everybody is working harder than they have in the past couple of years," Miller says. "Personally, I feel good and hope to do well. I know that I didn't contribute at nationals last year, and want to (contribute) this year."

In the hurdles, Miller will be joined by senior Kris Costello, sophomore Lisa Nicholson, freshmen Mary Mitchoff and Robin Pate. Pate was a redshirt last year.

The sprints could be the one weak spot for the Ducks this year. Managing without a sprinter most of last year due to an injury to Batiste, the Ducks might have to do so again in 1982. New Zealand Olympian, Sue Jowett had turned in impressive times of 11.31 in the 100 meters and 23.00 in the 200, but injuries have prevented her from performing at top form for the past few years.

In addition to Jowett, the Ducks will look to 200 and 400-meter runners, Lena Fritzson, Rhonda Massey, Grace Bakari, plus hurdlers Miller and Costello for support in the sprints.

The 1600-meter relay team will be in fine form with Fritzson, Massey and Warren returning along with Bakari, who anchored last year's third place finish in the AIAW.

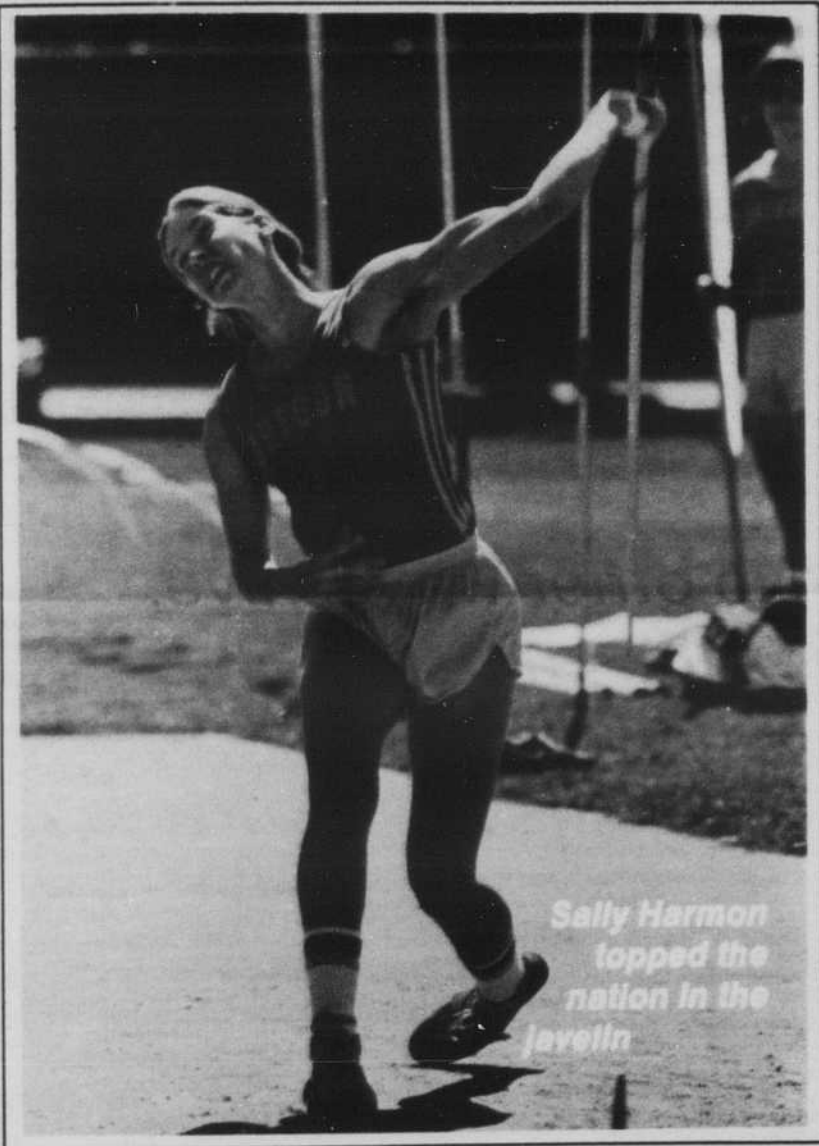

Mitchoff and Jeanne Borchardt, along with Miller should help score points for the Ducks in the long jump.

Borchardt will also compete in the high jump in addition to Kari Easton, Joni Martin and Julie Fitzgerald.

Borchardt is the only Duck with a mark in the heptathlon with 4,672 points. But she could be joined by Miller who has a pentathlon best of 3,700 points.

Who are the teams to beat in the Ducks' battle for their second national championship in three years?

"No one can touch us in the Northwest and everybody knows it," Heinonen says.

Sally Harmon topped the nation in the javelin
