

Historian talks on Falklands

The recently seized Falkland Islands, invaded Friday by Argentine national forces, and the destination for a 40-vessel British fleet bent on retaking the islands, will be the subject today of a talk by an expert on the history of Argentina.

David Tamarin, visiting assistant professor of Latin American history at the University, will speak on "The Falklands/Malvinas Conflict: Historical Perspective and the Crisis of Contemporary Argentina" at 3:30 today in Room 180 PLC. His presentation is sponsored by the Graduate History Club and the University history department.

John Nott, British defense secretary, said Sunday that Britain is prepared to fight Argentina for control of the Falkland Islands — called the "Malvinas" by Argentina — and said a peaceful solution was unlikely.

Civil rights forum slated

A forum entitled Racism and the Attack on Civil Rights: In Eugene: In Oregon: In Washington D.C. will be held tonight at 8 p.m. in the EMU Forum Room.

The forum will feature Ron Herndon, of the Black United Front, as the keynote speaker and Myra Willard, the former director of the University's affirmative action office.

Willard is currently involved in a lawsuit with the University over an alleged incident of discrimination.

Other speakers include Catherine Lauris, Sharon Claeysens and Chinosole, an instructor at the University and Lane Community College.

The event is jointly sponsored by the AFT Local 3209, Clergy and Laity Concerned, the Mayday Cultural Committee and the LCC Multicultural Center.

Firms to offer job experience

Five Eugene area firms will offer "Afternoon on the Job" experiences for University students during spring term.

Small groups of 12 students each will have the opportunity to see business in action in a variety of areas, according to Debbie Chereck, career development specialist with the University's Career Planning and Placement Service.

Students may sign up for the free program at the placement office on the Monday before the particular visit is offered. Participating firms and the dates of scheduled visits include Foster & Marshall/AMEX, April 15; The Emporium, April 22; ADLIB, Inc., April 29; New York Life Insurance, May 6; and The Eugene Hilton, May 13.

Chereck says each visit will include an overview of the firm's organization, opportunities for entry-level jobs and job qualification requirements.

Information packets will be given to students when they register. Transportation to and from the visit will be provided. The groups will meet at the placement office, 246 Susan Campbell Hall, at 1:30 p.m. and return to campus about 4 p.m.

For more information, call Chereck at 686-3235.

IFC elections now totals 35

ASUO elections are interesting — if not exciting — as became obvious from reviewing developments as campaigns got underway Monday and Tuesday.

Gus Palmitessa, ASUO executive vice president and elections director, allowed into the election another candidate for the Incidental Fee Committee — bringing the total number to 35 running for seven positions.

Tom Simpson, a sophomore in telecommunications and film studies, apparently thought he was filling out the appropriate form to file as a candidate on Friday. As it turns out, Simpson filled out an IFC job application.

IFC Chairer Karsten Rasmussen says Simpson's statement on the application didn't make much sense until he realized Simpson's faux pas. Palmitessa said he allowed Simpson into the running because it was an honest mistake and because one more candidate couldn't have any effect on a field of 34.

Simpson's name was placed on the bottom of the ballot.

In other election news, IFC candidate Ted Marks, a sophomore in biology and political science, first on the IFC ballot, has announced his alliance with the new Students for a Progressive Agenda coalition.

Census data conference set

The University's Bureau of Governmental Research and Services will co-host the third annual conference to focus on the availability and uses of 1980 census data. The Lane Council of Governments, in conjunction with the governmental research bureau, will also host the conference set for Monday, April, 19 at the new Eugene Conference Center.

The conference will examine demographic characteristics as revealed by 1980 U.S. census data released in December 1981, the conference will also explore Oregon population, housing and economic trends since 1980.

Designed for Oregon and Washington area social science data users, the conference will benefit data users from health, land-use, housing and economic development planners and businesses or individuals who need small-area data, says Karen Seidel, University research associate.

Speaker focuses on Greek hazing

Eileen Stevens, founder of the Committee Halting Useless College Killings, will speak at 7 p.m. tonight in Room 150 Geology.

Stevens, from Sayville, N.Y., is "for fraternities but against fraternity hazing," according to a representative of the University chapter of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, which is sponsoring the talk. Stevens' son, Chuck Stenzel, was killed Feb. 24, 1978, in a hazing incident at Alfred College in New York. He was a member of Klan Alpine, a local fraternity.

A $1 admission fee will be charged to cover the cost of bringing Stevens to Oregon. Any additional funds raised will be donated to her committee.

According to the SAE representative, Stevens is an excellent speaker with a worthwhile message. She will speak at Oregon State University on Thursday, also under SAE sponsorship.

For more information, call the SAE fraternity at 485-9080.
