OAS contemplates sanctioning Britain

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Organization of American States voted Tuesday to convene a special foreign ministers meeting to take up Argentina's request for hemispheric sanctions against Britain in the Falkland Islands dispute.

The vote was 18-0 with the United States, Colombia and Trinidad abstaining.

The foreign ministers of the 30 OAS members will convene here Monday to take up the matter.

"The danger of an armed attack is increasing," Argentine Ambassador Raul Quijano told the special meeting of the OAS permanent council. He called the British threat to recapture the Falklands by force a return to "gunboat diplomacy."

But Quijano said Argentina's petition for sanctions, made only hours after Secretary of State Alexander Haig ended four days of talks in Buenos Aires and left for Washington on Monday, did not mean his government is giving up on Haig's mediating efforts.

In London, meanwhile, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher told the House of Commons that the new Argentine peace plan fails to satisfy British conditions — namely in giving the 1,800 Falkland Islanders a say in their future — but that Foreign Secretary Francis Pym will present her government's counter-proposals to Haig on Thursday.

Rural council contests votes

ANTELOPE (AP) — The Antelope City Council, intent on doing away with itself because it fears a takeover by followers of an Indian guru, voted Tuesday night to contest the results of an election that preserved the town.

The council had sought disincorporation of the 81-year-old community, 150 miles east of Portland, because it feared followers of Bhagwan Sri Rajneesh would take over the city at the November general election.

The failure of the proposal was attributed to members of the commune who have been moving into town over the past six months into nine houses purchased by the commune.

Mayor Margaret Hill blamed the council's defeat on liberal Oregon election laws that allow residents of a community to register and vote on election day.

The result was that more than three times the 31 voters who cast ballots two years ago in the general election showed up to cast ballots.
