Karate team hosts tourney

By Greg Bryant
For the Emerald

The Oregon karate team swept the National Collegiate championships in New York last November, taking first place overall in both the men's and women's divisions. They also took first in 1979 in Los Angeles, and third in Minneapolis in 1980.

Last year's team has retired from collegiate competition, but a new crop of undergraduates are working hard to uphold Oregon's reputation. When the club sport team hosts the 18th annual Pacific Northwest Karate Championships this Saturday, the top finishers will be chosen for the 1982 squad.

The event will start at 1 p.m. in Room B-54, Gerlinger Annex. Admission is $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for children.

There will be both sparring and kata (formal patterns of technique) in the men's and women's divisions, as well as team competition. The tournament has both collegiate and general categories.

College teams from around the state will be competing for the John Warren Memorial Cup, which goes to the top university each year. There will also be a number of demonstrations, including the use of weapons and self-defense.

Although the team did well in the 1979 nationals, it was the first year an Oregon team was sent to the finals.

"For years we've had enough talent to compete" says Terry Samura, who was team captain in 1979.

"But we were unorganized, and no one ever had enough money to travel. We decided to go to LA, since it's so close. Ever since, it's been easier to get people to go every year."

University instructor Robert Graves, a 4th-degree black belt and chief instructor in the Northwest, will be head referee for Saturday's activities. Graves thinks the event will be entertaining for spectators, but says it's mainly for the participants.

"The whole thing is really just a part of training, learning to do things right under pressure," he says. "Tournaments are in no sense the goals of training, they are just an added incentive for some people."

In keeping with the instructional goals of the event, a dozen University students who are participating in a judging class this term will help to officiate. Hoping to qualify for a regional judging license, some of the students will even be using the tournament as a final exam.

The regional tournament is the major Northwest competition for the team. On May 22 and 23, Sensei Hidetaka Nshiyama, one of the nation's best instructors and an 8th degree black belt, will come to the University to give a six-hour seminar.

"Sensei Nshiyama's seminars here are very important for our training," says Adrian Novotny, a graduate student at the University, and a competitor in Saturday's event.

"We're all trying to develop good technique, and when he explains something, he follows it with a demonstration that's like an explosion, and it's truly inspirational."

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — The Oregon State University Athletic Board approved new athletic department budget cuts of $168,000 Thursday for the 1982-83 academic year.

The board endorsed and sent to President Robert MacVicar a $4.2 million men's athletics budget from which $115,000 had been deducted.

Athletic Director Dee Andros said the savings will be realized from reductions in travel expenses and in baseball, wrestling and track and field scholarships.

The board approved a $665,000 women's athletics budget that had been reduced by $53,000 so it would balance with anticipated revenues. Women's sports administration costs will be cut $28,000, and the rest of the reductions will be spread among six sports.

The board also recommended complete merger of the men's and women's athletic departments, contrary to the recommendation of a board subcommittee that wanted parts of the program to remain separate.

The board includes representatives of the faculty, alumni and students.
