

University Assembly transfers PhD

The University Assembly approved the transfer of the University's Ph.D. program in linguistics from the English department to the linguistics department by a unanimous vote Wednesday afternoon.

The assembly also passed a motion setting standards for "graduation with honors" in its final meeting of the 1981-82 school year.

The vote to transfer the Ph.D. program came after a month-long delay to allow the linguistics department to consult with the library.

George Shipman, University librarian, told the assembly that to ensure that the library has adequate resources, each time a program change is made, the library is required to consult with the department about its needs.

"This is an official adjustment in the status of the program that is long overdue," said Talmy Givon, head of the linguistics department. "It's a very straightforward adjustment."

The Ph.D. program in linguistics remained part of the English department when the linguistics curriculum was expanded and a separate department es-established in the mid-1970s.

The motion setting standards for graduation with honors was introduced by Glen Love, a University English professor and a member of the Academic Standards Committee.

His motion proposes that guidelines for "honors" specifications be described in the University catalog, that each department determine its own requirements and a "tangible" senior project or accomplishment of some kind be completed.

The motion also suggested a guideline of 10 percent of the students as an upper limit for degrees with honors.

Love explained that grade point averages aren't used as criteria because some departments weigh other factors more heavily.

Newly elected Faculty Advisory Council members and Faculty Personnel Committee members were announced. New advisory council members are: Aaron Novick, biology; Barry Siegel, economics; Donald Tull, marketing; Shirley Wilson, academic advising and student affairs; and Mike Ellis, physical education for a one-year appointment.

New personnel committee members include: Gloria Johnson; Robert Mazo, chemistry; Becky Sisley, physical education; and Daniel Weill, geology. Elected to one-year appointments were Melvin Aikens, anthropology and Ruth Waugh, special education.

The two groups and the University Senate also gave brief outlines of their accomplishments this year. The advisory council and the personnel committee will both file written reports before the end of the month.

Albrecht takes position at Colorado university

Robert Albrecht, currently the University's vice provost for academic affairs, has been appointed vice president for academic affairs at the University of Northern Colorado.

The appointment is effective August 1. A search will begin immediately for Albrecht's replacement, says Provost Richard Hill.

"While serving in his present position, Bob has addressed a variety of issues in a most imaginative and creative manner. We will miss him greatly, but we wish him every success," Hill says.

Albrecht has been a member of the English faculty at Oregon since 1967. He served as associate dean of the arts and sciences college from 1972 to 1974, was acting dean of the college during the 1974-75 academic year and became vice provost for academic planning in 1977.

Most recently Albrecht has been chairing a presidential coordinating committee working on a comprehensive plan for the University's academic future.
