

Summer oasis

Eugene bars: the best...

At the end of a hot summer day on campus, a long pull on a cool drink refreshes the parched throat, invigorates the weary brain and soothes the psyche.

Where can you lift that frosty glass to your lips? We checked out some bars that were new to us early in the season. On a Monday night we hit Harry's, Jo Federigo's and the Encore Room at the Eugene Hilton. The Vet's Club, Lyon's, and The Excelsior Cafe we've visited on more than one occasion. Our observations may have been influenced by our consumption of rum and tequila, but such were the occupational hazards of our undertaking.

Weekday Happy Hour from 2-7 p.m. Draft beer and wine 75 cents per glass, well drinks $1.25. Free hot and cold hors d'oeuvres served from 5:30-7 p.m. Mixed drinks cost $1.75 to about $2.75.

Monday evening was slow at Harry's. The deck was closed and the bar nearly empty. A strawberry daiquiri and a margarita were our choices for summer coolers. Each drink cost $2.50.

Logic (or expectation) would seem to dictate a better than average drink on a slow night, but this was not the case. The salt around the margarita was excessive and the daiquiri wasn't smooth and lacked any flavor of rum.

Harry's interior features a late 19th century motif. Scrolled ironwork tulip fixtures light the bar, and old portraits and photos are scattered around the room. A few hanging plants stave off sterility.

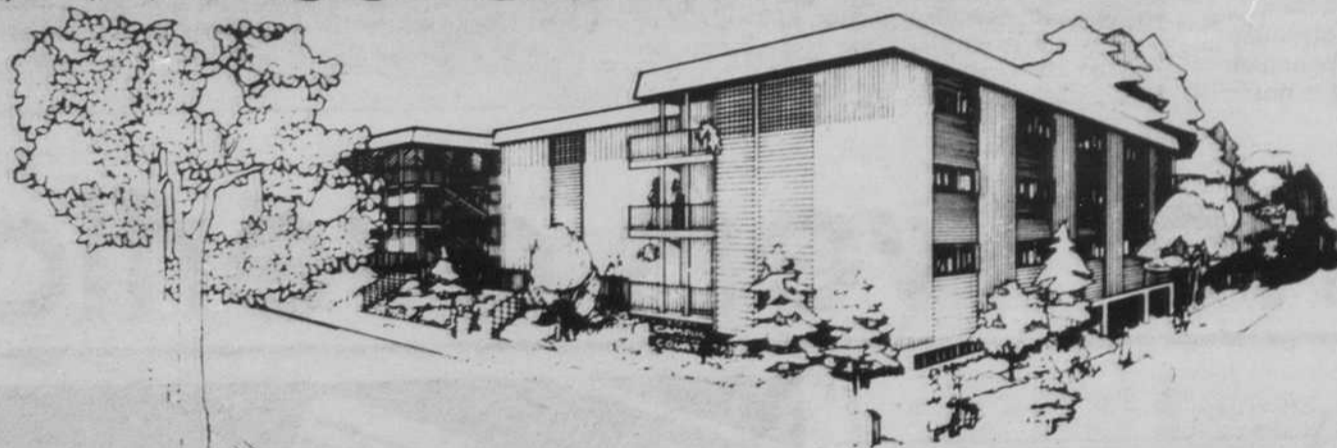

A decidedly middle-class atmosphere.

Some kind of special is happening every night at Lyon's. Happy Hours daily from 3:30-6:30 p.m., with double well drinks priced at $1.29. Sunday is Jogger's Night with Happy Hour prices on any orange juice drink until closing. Monday is Ladies Night and all specialty drinks (daiquiris, margaritas, etc.) are $1.79 from 7 p.m. to closing. Tuesday is Beer Nite with 60 ounce pitchers of Bud going for $1.99, 7 p.m. to closing. Wednesday pays tribute to the University with an all-night Happy Hour for students and
