TENNIS COURTS

15th Avenue Courts

No lights and asphalt surfaces, but popular with University students, especially during nice weather. Nice open areas for a bit of arm-chair participation.

Alder Street Courts

No lights and asphalt surfaces. Between the music school and the education school. Popular with the off-campus students because of its location.

15th Avenue Covered Courts

Covered asphalt with lights. Very popular place at night or during the rain. Right across from the campus security office and Next to Leighton pool.

Prefontaine. A University distance runner and a 1972 Olympic team member, "Pre" was killed in a car wreck in 1975.

Hayward Field

15th Avenue and Agate Street

If one tends to have an active imagination while one is slogging along, Hayward could just be the most delightful place to mentally grasp the thrill of victory.

The site of the Olympic Track and Field Trials for 1972, '76 and '80, as well as many world class races, the ghosts of tens of thousands of rabid track fans can take Joe Schmutz from his daily run to The Moment. Like most running places around Eugene, including the good old pavement, Hayward is where Joe can mix with Alberto, even if he can't keep up.

The track is open to the public, except during University practice and meet times, all day — and

TRACKS AND TRAILS

Pre's Trail

Alton Baker Park

If one runs, jogs, or just slogs along at a 12 minute mile pace, Pre's Trail at Alton Baker Park is the place to do it.

Bordered by the Willamette River on one side and lush greenery on the other, five separate running paths wind through the park from east of the I-5 overpass to just before the Ferry Street Bridge. Along with the 6.4 Kilometers of running trail there is an exercise area with six stations for a complete workout.

The best place to start the sawdust covered trails is at the parking lot of Autzen Stadium. A complete map of the course is posted there.

For those folks un-familiar with The Legend, the running paths were named for the late Steve for those with moonlight on their mind, all night.

The Other Track

15th Avenue and University Street.

Even if the track is behind the main grandstand at Hayward, even if it is cinder and even if no one has had the decency to give it an official name yet, "the other track" is a decent place to log some miles.

For those intimidated by Hayward's big time rep or for those who seek refuge on an uncrowded course, "the other track" fits the bill. It also maintains the same hours as Hayward.

South Eugene High School

East 19th Avenue and Patterson Street

South has a rubber asphalt, all-weather track that almost connects to the beginning of the trails at Amazon Park. If one desires some track work with trail work mixed in (or vice-versa), South is a good place to run.
