tackle spot. Another pre-season Playboy All-American, senior Bruce Matthews (6-5, 260), pulls from his guard spot to lead the sweep. He is joined by center Tony Slaton (6-4, 250), first-team All-Pac-10 last fall.

You're the strong safety, in direct line of this thundering herd. Do you really care who the tailback is?

Just like a lot of this season's Pac-10 defenses, probably not. The defense will be too worried about the Trojan's offensive line.

The Trojans return four of five starting offensive linemen, the only loss being guard Roy Foster to the NFL. Actually, the Trojans have five starters returning, since senior Kelly Thomas (6-6, 270) and Darryl Moore (6-6, 270) split time starting at the strongside tackle spot last fall.

The tailback that will follow these behemoths will be either sophomore Fred Crutcher (5-10, 195), junior Michael Harper (5-11, 195) or sophomore Zep Lee (6-2 1/2, 204). Crutcher (268 yards, 7.4 avg. in '81) and Harper (who redshirted last fall after gaining 274 yards in '80) backed up Marcus Allen the last two years, while Lee 8.1 averaged yards per attempt as last year's third-string tailback.

The fullback and quarterback positions are a bit more solidified, with junior Todd Spencer (5-11 1/2, 195), who gained 377 yards in '81, returning as the starter at fullback, and sophomore Sean Salisbury (6-5 1/2, 210) taking over the starting quarterback position from John Mazur, who transferred to Texas AM after losing the job to Salisbury in the spring.

Salisbury, who had 15 pass attempts last fall, will be throwing to returning senior split ends Jeff Simmons (6-3, 195), who caught 28 passes for 543 yards in '81, and Malcolm Moore (6-5, 205), who caught 15 for 230 yards.

The Pac-10's best defense last year returns seven starters. Senior noseguard George Achica (6-5, 255), a second team All-American in '81, anchors a defense that allowed only 285.3 yards per game last fall. Second team All-Pac-10 cornerback Joey Browner (6-3, 205), who had 74 tackles and 16 deflections last year, will switch to safety this fall.

The Trojans actually have eight starters returning, since linebacker Riki Gray, a starter in '80 and an All-Pac-10 choice, will return after knee surgery last year.

The Trojans, who haven't had a losing season since a 4-5-1 mark in 1961, are ranked tenth nationally in the AP wire service poll. The trojans will have to be happy with wire service rankings this fall, the NCAA has banned them from bowl games, which they've been to 13 of the last 16 years.

But that shouldn't slow them down, according to Robinson. "We'll have a damn good football team," Robinson says. "Count on it."

Arizona State

Arizona State was 9-2 in 1981, thanks to the nation's best offense (498.7 yards, 35.8 points per game), and the conference's best rushing defense (121.1 yards per game).

But the Sun Devils were shut out of a bowl game due to NCAA sanctions.

This year there will be a bowl game at the end of the Sun Devil's season — if they can rebuild an offense gutted by graduation. ASU lost seven starters, including quarterback Mike Pagel and running backs Robert Weathers and Gerald Riggs, all of whom are playing pro ball.

But head coach Darryl Rogers needn't be too worried — he has possibly the best defensive team in the nation suited up in ASU's maroon and gold, if preseason polls are any barometer.

The Sun Devils are ranked 19th nationally in the Associated Press poll, and are picked to finish third or fourth in a talented Pac-10 by most football publications.

Seniors Mike Richardson and Vernon Maxwell, picked to the All-Pac-10 team last fall, will direct a defense that returns nine
