Two children remain hostage as man trades weapon for food

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — An "erratic" man holding two children hostage and claiming that a woman was dead in an Amtrak sleeper car where he is holed up, surrendered his pistol Sunday in a "show of faith." He said he would surrender if his godfather spoke to him, police said.

The gunman, who identified himself as Mario Rodriguez, accepted food for the first time in the three-day standoff. He also told police that he had shot another man.

The man lowered a bundle containing a 9mm pistol from the window of the car Sunday night, said Police Chief Frederick Heineman. He added that the man was believed to still have a .45-caliber submachine gun in the compartment.

"This is a show of faith," Capt. C.L. Price said, adding that the pistol was exchanged for cigarettes, matches and soft drinks.

Meanwhile, police continued looking for a New York City lawyer the gunman identified as his godfather, Price said. Police believe the man also is the gunman's uncle.

Heineman did not release the name of the godfather.

Earlier in the day, the thin, bare-chested, bare-legged gunman yelled, leaned out of a window police had broken earlier and waved. After his 10-second appearance, during which no gun was in sight, he left a white sheet hanging outside the window.

"Don't shoot, don't shoot, I want water," the man said in Spanish.

Rodriguez told police earlier that the woman's body was in an upper berth of the sleeper car. Police said there was a strong stench coming from the car and many of the heavily-armed officers donned surgical masks.

Earlier, the man claimed that a male hostage he said was his brother-in-law also was dead.

"Our strategy is to hope to continue to convince him to turn those children over to us, if only for medical reasons," Heineman said. "We don't know if he'll go for that. We do know that he is very close to the children."

Tucker said the crisis could last much longer now that the gunman has food.

"We're still basically in the same position we were before," he said. "We're not rushing the situation. If he wants something to drink and to eat then we'll let him do that as long as the children appear healthy."

Jury finds husband guilty in killing

NEW YORK (AP) — A 23-year-old Yonkers bartender was convicted Sunday of murdering his wife, a transsexual model and nightclub performer. The bartender's co-defendant was acquitted of the killing.

Robert Ferrara was convicted of second-degree murder and faces 25 years to life in prison. His co-defendant, Robyn Arnold, was acquitted by the six-woman, six-man jury, which had deliberated for more than three days.

Arnold, a Mount Vernon nurse, had paid for the 1980 sex-change surgery that transformed her boyfriend, John Delia, into the transsexual Diane, according to testimony.

Ferrara had been Delia's lover before and after the sex change, according to trial testimony. He had married the victim about two months before she was killed.

Prosecutors said the defendants fired two bullets each into the victim's head around last Oct. 7 in a wooded area of Rockland County. Her body was dumped into the Hudson River and surfaced near Manhattan on Oct. 28.

The motive, prosecutors charged, was "overwhelming jealousy" over the fact that the victim was forming new relationships and severing her ties to the defendants.

The killing allegedly occurred several days after the model had moved her belongings out of the Yonkers apartment she had shared with Ferrara, according to testimony.

Swedes say mystery sub may have eluded traps

BERGA NAVAL BASE, Sweden (AP) — Sweden's naval command Sunday admitted for the first time that a suspected Soviet-bloc submarine said to be trapped in Hors Bay may have escaped as early as Oct. 1, the day it was discovered.

"There has been a submarine in Hors Bay," a statement by Supreme Cmdr. Lennart Ljung said. "It could still be there but the likelihood is gradually decreasing."

Ljung conceded the intruder sub may have escaped Oct. 1 or between Oct. 5-7. The navy previously confirmed the vessel made one unsuccessful attempt to break out through mined barriers during the past week, but newspapers reported two more attempts.

Navy spokesman Capt. Sven Carlsson told a news conference Sunday that "As far as we know the submarine is likely still there... the last firm indication was Friday."

But Ljung's statement, while acknowledging that "There has been and may still be a submarine in the outer area," added that "It may be the same submarine or it may be a second one."
