

Social Security will borrow up to $2 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Social Security's old-age trust fund will have to borrow between $1 billion and $2 billion shortly after Election Day to cover the Nov. 3 checks for nearly 32 million retirees and their families, a government official said Monday.

That will only be the first installment. The old-age fund, under temporary authority granted by Congress last year, will have to borrow up to $11 billion from the disability and Medicare trust funds before the end of December to keep paying benefits on time through next June, said Treasury Department spokesman Marlin Fitzwater.

He said the borrowing — the first in history — involves nothing more than "a bookkeeping entry" after the checks go out. He stressed, "There is no danger of anyone not receiving a check."

Robert J. Myers, executive director of the National Commission on Social Security Reform, estimated that $1 billion to $1.5 billion remained in the old-age fund after September checks totaling $11.9 billion were mailed Oct. 3.

Payroll tax receipts will rebuild the fund before Nov. 3, but it may still fall short of the $11.5 billion needed, Myers said.
