Lovely

Wally Ziakita, Melissa Meyer, Bob Herried, Cindy Banks, and Kela Murchison (clockwise from bottom) play an intriguing group of characters in "Oh, What a Lovely War," opening Wednesday in Villard Hall's Arena Theatre.

The play, a satirical musical review about World War I written by Joan Littlewood and Charles Chilton, will also run Oct. 28-30, Nov. 3-6, 10-13, 17-20, and Dec. 1-4 at 8 p.m.

"This dazzling and satiric review shows us that war is seldom noble and often needless," says John Rindo, a University theater graduate student. "It makes you laugh and it makes you want to weep."

"Most of the songs were created by the soldiers themselves to lift morale, and they give 'Oh, What a Lovely War' the color of a circus and the bumpiness of vaudeville," he adds.

Costumes were designed by Laura Webster and sets by Leslie Fried. Jean Robinson is choreographer and Michael Callahan is technical director.

Tickets are $3.25 for University students and senior citizens, $4 for other students, and $5 for the general public.

For reservations and further information, call the University Theatre box office at 686-4191, noon to 4 p.m. Monday through Saturday. The box office is also open from noon to 8:30 p.m. on performance days.

Men of U of O Calendar

THE IMAGE

Oregon's first look at '83

How would you like to help the University of Oregon join in the rage across campuses?

Calendars of men in Universities are quickly becoming the talk of the year.

Men at the University of Nebraska, Arizona State University, the University of Massachusetts / Amherst and Oregon State University have already taken part in this enthusiasm. Join in this new trend soon to become a campus tradition.

Men representing the University of Oregon will be selected for the IMAGE. Be a part of the excitement. Submit a photograph of yourself along with the coupon below (or reasonable facsimile) to:
