

Lance names Smith assistant for state and academic affairs

Tracy Smith, an economics senior, was appointed administrative assistant for state and academic affairs, says Debi Lance, ASUO vice president for state and academic affairs.

Smith will be in charge of "working on the filing of projects," such as voter registration and the "accumulating of data for lobbying," Lance says. She also will serve as an official representative of the office at various functions, she adds.

Smith is scheduled to work 10-15 hours per week.

Smith has had no previous experience in student government, but she says this will not be a handicap. She has been a coordinator for the Economics Department's peer-advising program, a tutor for the American English Institute, and a member of the campus insurance committee.

Law school opens doors Saturday in effort to recruit minorities

Minorities interested in law school and the legal profession can attend a free open house at the University law school on Saturday.

The all-day event, sponsored by the law school and the Minority Law Student Association, will cover admission requirements, academic support, financial assistance and opportunities in the legal professions.

Speakers include Derrick Bell, law school dean; Peggy Nagae, assistant dean; Marilyn Bradetich, director of admissions; Bert Fukumoto, academic support program director, and members of MLSA.

Participants also will have an opportunity to meet the speakers and discuss areas of interest on a more personal basis.

"MLSA acts as a support for the few minorities at the law school," says Tess Brasser, president of MLSA. "We need more minorities."

The program begins at 10 a.m. in Room 221 of the Law School and runs through the afternoon. Lunch is provided.

Waiver offered for writing class

Students scheduled to take Writing 121 next term should consider taking the waiver test being offered Nov. 29.

Interested students need to register at the University Counseling Center, Room 238 by Monday. There is a $3 charge to take the 2½ hour test.

Passing the part-objective, part-essay test earns a no-credit waiver of the first of the two required writing courses.

Evelyn Rowe, test administrator, suggests students come to the testing center and look at the format of the test several days before the exam. She estimates about 25 percent of the students who attempt the test pass it.

Corps begins recruiting drive

Representatives from the Peace Corps will appear at the University next week in a recruiting drive for graduates who would be available for two-year assignments in Africa, Asia, Latin America and the Pacific.

There will be a film seminar on Wednesday in the EMU Forum Room at 3 p.m.

Marsh Swartz, University Peace Corps coordinator, says the corps is seeking applicants with backgrounds or degrees in math, the physical and life sciences, French, engineering, agriculture, health, home economics and nutrition, industrial arts, business, special education, fisheries, forestry and other disciplines.

Peace Corps volunteers serve for two years and take two to three months of cultural-and-language training. A living allowance, medical care and transportation costs are provided. Applicants must have good health and be U.S. citizens.

THE LITE BEER ALL-STARS STRIKE AGAIN.

When famous bowler Don Carter invited 23 Kingpins to the First Lite Beer Bowling Tournament, it seemed like a great idea.

It was the guys who drink Lite Beer from Miller because it tastes great, against the guys who drink it because it's less filling. And once again, the All-Stars proved they're in a league by themselves.

After a lot of pins (and quite a few Lite Beers) went down and the smoke finally cleared, the score was

All he needed to win it was one pin. A klutz situation, Rodney, in top form, got the same amount of pins as he gets respect. None.

Teammate Ben Davidson felt Rodney deserved a break, or at least a fracture. Billy Martin didn't argue with that. Jim Honochick couldn't believe his eyes. Neither could Marv

Throneberry.

So the First Lite Beer Bowling Tournament ended in a draw. And the argument over the best thing about Lite was left unsettled.

But there was one thing everyone agreed on. It was truly everything you always wanted in a bowling tournament. And less.
