Democrats gain seats nationally

From Associated Press reports

Democrats held their ground in the Republican Senate and surged toward strengthened command of the House of Representatives Tuesday night as America's voters elected a new Congress that may stay Pres. Ronald Reagan's hand instead of staying his course for the next two years.

Incumbency, not Reaganomics, seemed the key to Senate verdicts in the off-year elections. Twenty incumbents were re-elected and only one had lost, with decisions to come on the other 12 Senate races.

In California, Republican Mayor Pete Wilson of San Diego was leading Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., the three-time presidential candidate.

The House competition was going the Democrats' way. They won or led for enough seats to guarantee wider control than in the current Congress. Ten incumbents had been defeated; every one a Republican.

The beaten senator was a Republican, too, Harrison Schmitt of New Mexico. He lost to Jeff Bingaman, the state attorney general, who was gaining 52 percent of the vote.

Democrats were adding to their domination of the governorships, ending GOP stewardships of Ohio, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Arkansas. In California, Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley fell behind in his bid to become the nation's first black governor.

As the votes were counted in the off-year election that was dominated by the debate over the economy, 15 Democrats and four Republicans had won new Senate terms. The GOP picked up a seat in Virginia, and Republicans were leading in more than enough Senate races to renew their control of that chamber.

Rep. Paul Trible was the Virginia victor, defeating Democratic Lt. Gov. Richard Davis with 52 percent of the vote, to succeed retiring Sen. Harry Byrd. Byrd is an independent who voted with the administration on economic programs, but with the Democrats on Senate control.

Democrats gained a Republican seat in New Jersey, where Rep. Millicent Fenwick, the pipe-smoking congresswoman who led all the pre-campaign polls, lost to Democratic businessman Frank Lautenberg.

The House count was slower, but the portents were Democratic.

By midnight, Democrats had won 186 seats, led for 62, while Republican candidates had captured 97 seats, led for 65. There were no returns in the other House contests. It takes 218 seats to claim majority.

Portland wants U.S. to end aid to El Salvador

PORTLAND, (AP) — Voters in Oregon's most populous county voted overwhelmingly on Tuesday to ask the U.S. government to end its military aid to El Salvador's rightist government.

With 215 of Multnomah County's 482 precincts reporting, 46,371 or 75.3 percent of the voters voted in favor of the resolution and 15,175 or 24.6 percent voted against it.
