

Job openings at the Emerald?

Yeah. And they look good. There are three openings in display ad sales. Great experience. Pays pretty well. Good people to work with.

You'll have to be good to get the job!

Sure. But it's worth it. I'll get some training and then Winter Term I'll start with my own account list. Eventually, I'll be working about 20 hours a week.

How do you apply?

First commercial flight for Columbia, Thursday

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — With a predawn "call to stations," test conductor Andy Brown on Sunday started the countdown for space shuttle Columbia's first satellite-carrying commercial flight, set for a fiery liftoff Thursday.

The count began on schedule at 3 a.m. when Brown summoned more than 50 technicians and engineers to their consoles in the launch control center three miles from the steel and concrete pad where Columbia is perched.

The four astronauts who will man the shuttle on its first operational mission were at the Johnson Space Center in Houston, concluding months of training. They are Vance Brand, the commander; pilot Robert Overmyer and mission specialists William Lenoir and Joseph Allen.

The early part of the count proceeded smoothly as Columbia's electrical power was switched on and the 60-foot-long cargo bay doors were closed, sealing inside the two 7,200-pound communications satellites that are the shuttle's first commercial payloads.

Satellite Business Systems of McLean, Va., and Telesat of Canada are the first in a long line of customers who will pay to have their payloads carried into orbit by the shuttle. They each have paid the National Aeronautics and Space Administration $10 million for hauling up the two $30 million satellites.

Vermonters snorting in disgust over developers pig farm 'joke'

STOWE, Vt. (AP) — Residents of this picturesque tourist town are squealing over a developer's plan to plunk down a pig farm on the spot where he was denied permission to build a motel.

The future hog farm was heralded by truckloads of manure dumped into the meadow where the 79-unit motel would have been, all within sight of the neighbors who opposed it.

The road, Vermont 108, is lined with inns, eateries and condominiums.

Jonathan Brownell, a lawyer hired by townspeople to stay the stay, called the new plan "a joke" and said it was retaliation for the local uproar over the motel proposal.

Residents last week got a temporary injunction against all activity at the site, including manure dumping.

They also have appealed the zoning permit for the pig farm granted Ramsey Associates of York, Maine.

Ray Ramsey, who owns another hotel in Vermont and four in other parts of New England, has told state and town officials he will raise up to 200 pigs and some cattle on 16 acres of the Stowe land he bought for $110,000 in April.

He said he would build 50 pens, a barn, a chicken coop and a mobile home for a hired hand.

The town granted the permit since agriculture is permitted in the area under zoning laws.

Ramsey lost his effort to build a motel on the site last month when his request for a mandatory state environmental permit was turned down. Neighbors complained that a new motel would ruin one of the last open spaces on the busy stretch of highway that winds up a mountainside.
