Faculty advisory group not clandestine, says Hill

The faculty advisory council does not meet secretly, University vice provost Richard Hill said Tuesday in reference to remarks made Monday by ASUO Pres. C.J. Balfe.

The faculty-elected council has existed for a long time, Hill said in reaction to Balfe's comments published in Tuesday's Emerald.

University Pres. Paul Olum takes ideas to the committee to get a faculty perspective, Hill said.

The committee also serves as a communicating device between the president and the faculty, he added.

Balfe's suggestion for creating a student advisory council is a feasible idea, Hill said.

The council is being formed so Olum may ask students to advise him on issues pertinent to students, Balfe said Tuesday. The council is not in opposition to the administration and faculty, he said.

The ASUO hopes to have a student representative on the faculty committee, but until that time the council will serve the purpose, Balfe said. The ASUO does not want a vote on the committee, "but a voice in what happens," he added.

The remarks made in the article "are not a good representation of how we have tried to work with them this year," Balfe said.

The ASUO doesn't "want to go head-to-head with anyone," but wants to work with the faculty and administration, he said.

The statement about protecting student organizations' autonomy was not "paranoia about the administration taking over," but concerned strengthening student autonomy, Balfe added.

The ASUO and Student University Affairs Board are not wary of the faculty but want to assure student representatives vote responsibly so they are not accused of coalition or irresponsible voting, he said.

Students to fill a variety of advisory committees

Forty-four students have been appointed to positions on University student/faculty committees by the student Committee on Committees and confirmed by University Pres. Paul Olum.

Olum appointed the following students to the following committees:

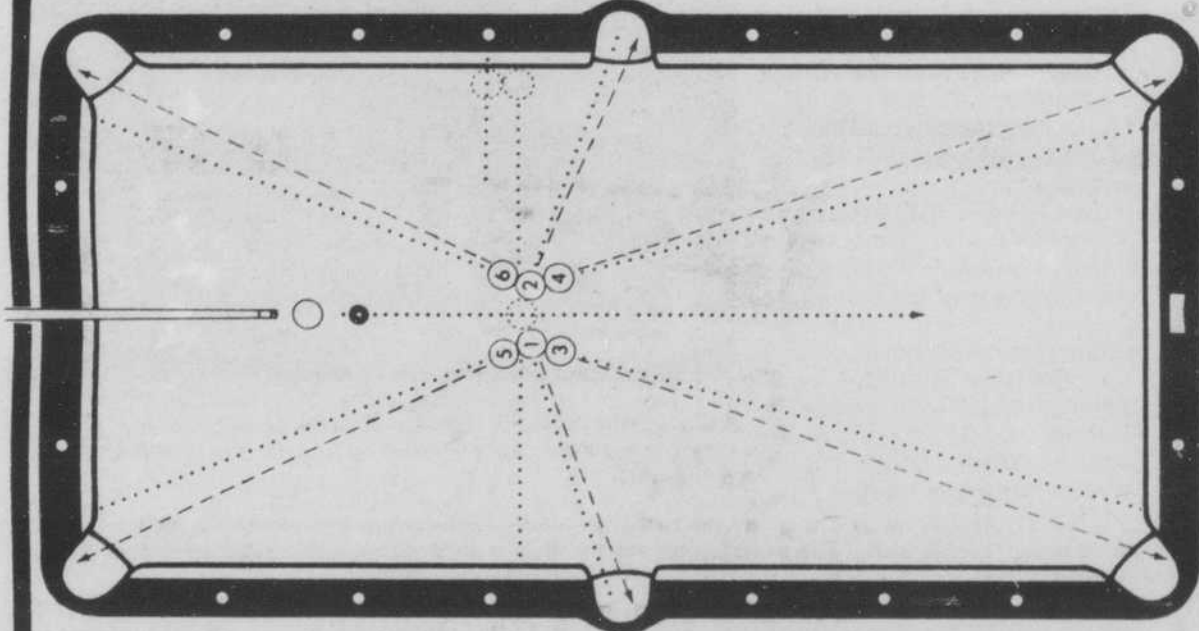

Lori Kleinsmith, James Gilbaugh, Michael Wilson — academic standards; Patrick Widmer — admissions policy; Hilary Gerdes, Christine LaCasse — advising; Jeffrey Stuhr — campus planning; JoZell Johnson — curriculum; Deborah Romerein, David Lesser — University faculty personnel; Katherine Yorke, Ann Croman — foreign study programs; Craig Taylor — graduate council; Tom Danowski, Dale Penegor, Robert Waldron — intercollegiate athletics; David Steinmetz, Steve Gehlen — library; Elizabeth Halimah, April Brown, Patricia Akiyama, Terry Russell — minority education council; Lorianne Shaff, Gina Marie Crowe — museum of art advisory; Leslie Drate — safety advisory; Daniel Cohen, Jennifer Elling — scholarships; Richard Stewart, Cheryl Royston, Misha Levitan-Keith, Kelly Spohn — scholastic review; Colleen Chinen, Cynthia Briggs — status of women; Pat Maginnis, Michael Cornell, Tamae Moriyasu — student financial aid; David McKay, Rebecca Ricoy — student health services; Mark Woloshin — teacher education; Mona Buckley, Cliff Baker, Lori Lieberman — grievances; and Mike Annis, Lyn Thompson — traffic appeals.

Further appointments will be announced at a later date.
