Folklorists to meet

Folklore is in the eye of the beholder, according to Carol Silverman, a University anthropology professor. On Saturday, people will get a chance to focus on it at the Oregon Folklore Society's annual meeting.

Conference activities, to be held at the Koinonia Center, include presentations about the lives of railroad's black porters, art in education, whales, Northwest Indian mythology and sonalization through jump-roping.

"The purpose of our annual meeting is to provide a forum for folklorists to share their work, experiences and ideas with each other," says Silverman, who will be installed as president of the society at the meeting.

"Folklore can be found anywhere," she says. Student groups such as sororities and fraternities are part of the University's folklore and culture. "Every group has their own traditions," Silverman says.

Best professor sought

Mortar Board, the senior honor society, is accepting nominations for Professor-of-the-Month.

Nominations may be submitted to the Mortar Board mailbox in EMU Suite 4 or in the nomination box on the first floor of the library.

"It's a great way for students to honor faculty members who they feel deserve recognition," says Jeff Nudelman, the group's event coordinator.

Board mulls light bulbs

The Student University Affairs Board discussed a proposal Monday to conserve energy by removing light bulbs from campus buildings.

"I've had the idea in the back of my head for two years," said SUAB member Mike Prothe. Removing two bulbs in a four-bulb fluorescent light fixture would save 120 watts, he said.

"I feel that some buildings on campus — Lawrence, Gilbert, and Friendly, for example — are terribly over lit," he said.

Physical Plant representatives were receptive to the idea, but they said little money remains in their budget for removing lightbulbs, Prothe said. SUAB could not use volunteer labor because physical plant employees are the only people authorized and insured to work on University facilities, he added.

The proposal needs more background information on specific energy savings before the University Assembly is officially notified, SUAB Chairer Dan Allen said.

Balfe fills committee vacancy

ASUO Pres. C.J. Balfe has appointed Brenda Thornton, a journalism junior, to fill a vacancy on the ASUO Constitution Committee.

Thornton replaces Lori Heironimus, who did not enroll at the University this term. The constitution committee has five members.

The new appointee is a member of the women's crew team, and Druids, the junior honorary society. Thornton also has been a freelance reporter for the Emerald.

The committee appointment is Balfe's fourth during his administration. Also appointed were third-year law student Steve Baldwin, and first-year law student Julie Davis. Karsten Rasmussen, a third-year law student, was appointed committee chairer.
