

NFL strike finally ended

NEW YORK (AP) — A tentative agreement was reached Tuesday night to end the 57-day-old National Football League strike, the longest and costliest walkout in sports history. The season is to resume Sunday.

The settlement, subject to ratification by player representatives of the 28 clubs and the owners' NFL Management Council and then three-quarters of the owners and a majority of the 1,500 players, was confirmed by management negotiator Jack Donlan, union chief Ed Garvey and union president Gene Upshaw.

Details of the settlement, including how many games the season will be comprised of, were not available pending ratification. Donlan said, however, that Super Bowl XVII will be played Jan. 30 in Pasadena, Calif., as originally scheduled.

"I think we have a tentative agreement," Donlan said. "I am hoping it can be ratified tonight. I am happy and elated."

The agreement was reached after two days of renewed negotiations that began after the National Labor Relations Board refused the union's request to cite the league for bargaining in bad faith.

Estimates of the costs of the strike ranged upwards of $275 million, based on league estimates of $30 million a week in revenues and union estimates of $9 million a week in player salaries.

The football strike affected 112 of the originally scheduled 224 games.

This Sunday's games are Baltimore at the New York Jets, Cincinnati at Philadelphia, Detroit at Chicago, Kansas City at New Orleans, the Los Angeles Rams at Atlanta, Miami at Buffalo, Minnesota vs. Green Bay at Milwaukee, New England at Cleveland, Pittsburgh at Houston, San Francisco at St. Louis, Seattle at Denver, Tampa Bay at Dallas and Washington at the New York Giants.

On Monday night, San Diego will visit the Los Angeles Raiders.

Judge's ruling may force feds to scrap registration

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Draft opponents said Tuesday a federal judge's decision could force the government to scrap its registration program, but the Selective Service warned young men they must sign up or face prosecution.

Barry Lynn of the group Draft Action said in Washington, D.C., that "the death knell for draft registration" was sounded when U.S. District Judge Terry Hatter dismissed the case against a 21-year-old admitted draft resister Monday in Los Angeles.

Hatter said the registration rules had been put into effect in 1980 "a mere 21 days" after they were published in the Federal Register, instead of 30 days as required. He also ruled the government had violated David Wayne's constitutional right of free speech by prosecuting only vocal opponents of the draft.

U.S. Attorney Stephen Trott said the case would be appealed to the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, but no notice of appeal had been filed by early Tuesday afternoon.

A Justice Department spokesman said Tuesday that the administration will appeal "the entire order issued yesterday by Judge Terry Hatter. This includes all issues in the opinion and order."

"The Department of Justice believes the opinion is wrong and will proceed with investigations and prosecutions of non-registrants in a routine manner," said Arthur Brill, deputy director of public affairs, in a statement he read to reporters.

Lynn said he believes the legal problems with registration cannot be cured retroactively and that it should be abandoned.

Otherwise, the government would have to start all over again with new regulations, and re-register men, he said. He questioned whether Congress would be willing to appropriate funds to start over.

"The government has a serious law enforcement problem on its hands," added David Landau of the American Civil Liberties Union, saying he too saw no solution other than ending the system.

Former Pres. Jimmy Carter, who reinstated draft registration, said Tuesday the courts' ultimate decision would have "a profound impact" on future efforts to mobilize in defense emergencies.
