Police seek sodomy suspect

Police composite drawing

The victim of a sexual assault on campus last weekend has worked with Eugene police to complete a composite drawing of one of her two attackers.

The victim, an 18-year-old University student, was attacked by two men at about 11:30 p.m. Saturday as she walked to her dorm from Rennie's Landing, according to Sgt. Rick Allison of the Eugene Police Department.

The first suspect (shown in the composite) is described in police reports as being in his early 20s, 6 feet, 180 pounds with blond hair. He was wearing a gray sweater, blue jeans and running shoes.

The second suspect was a white male about six feet tall, 200 pounds and 23 years old.

Allison asks that anyone who can identify either suspect or provide additional information call him at 686-5444.

Soap fans may have to tune out until spring term

Soap opera addicts will have to wait until spring term to find out whether the EMU TV will be returned to the EMU, the EMU House Committee decided Thursday.

At an earlier meeting, Dan Cohen, house committee member, suggested the TV be moved from its former location near the Fishbowl to the Recreation Center. Sandy Vaughn, director of Club Sports, which borders the Recreation Area, said there was much "negative feeling" from students toward having the television in the Recreation Area.

Vaughn said many students thought that moving the TV to the Recreation Area would "eliminate the purpose of the area, which is an activity area."

Student reaction to the removal of the TV, despite the popularity of afternoon soap operas, was low, said Frank Geltner, EMU assistant director.

"I was surprised by the lack of reaction" from soap opera fans, Geltner said. "They just went to another place to watch the soaps."

But one member said reinstalling the TV is not a necessity. "It is not our duty to provide a TV," said Alan Scarce.

The committee decided to wait until spring term to decide whether to reinstall the TV, noting that the problems with transients that led to the TV's removal will be alleviated by the warm spring weather.

In other business, the committee considered what to do with the former TV room that remains unused. An artist has offered to create "installed art" in the room, said committee member Paul Curtis. Frank Geltner described installed art as "art you walk through."

The artwork would not be permanent, would cause no room damage and would still allow use of the room's doorways and restrooms, Geltner said.

The committee also approved moving the Fishbowl jukebox to the Recreation Center. The move may increase revenue and spark student interest in the center, Vaughn said.

The committee also decided to revamp guidelines for assigning EMU office space to student organizations. The committee allowed Students for a Nuclear Free Future to continue to use Suite 1 and the remaining unused suite space, pending a review of all EMU building space.
