Pyramid energy talk set

A former NASA space scientist who now teaches on pyramid energy and its relation to health will be giving a lecture and seminar this weekend in Eugene.

Dr. Fred Bell will lecture Friday on health, nutrition, the "pyramid effect," and other topics at the Laurelwood Golf Course clubhouse, 2700 Columbia St. Admission will be $3.

A Saturday seminar at the New Age Center, 1015 River Road, will last from 10:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. The cost is $20.00 in advance or $25.00 at the door.

Bell worked with the University of Michigan on atomic energy at the age of 15 and, after spending four years in the Air Force, left to work with Rockwell at 21.

At 25, he was vice president of a $9 million firm.

Club sports face budget problems

Each University club sport may have to raise 15 percent of its EMU budget or risk an $1,100 cut, said Dan Cohen, EMU budget committee member, at a committee meeting Tuesday.

The suggestion would serve as an incentive for clubs to raise more of their own funds and rely on EMU funding less. Sports clubs meeting the 15 percent requirement would receive $1,100, Cohen said.

The suggestion will be discussed at a future meeting.

Other subjects covered by the budget committee included longer hours for the Skylight Refectory, and an update on the Main Desk and the Recreation Center.

The committee is planning to move the popcorn machine at the Main Desk to the Skylight Refectory and to increase the Refectory's hours during finals week. "This is expected to bring in more revenue to the Skylight, which is losing eight to 10 percent of its possible sales because students use it as a place to study all day long, rather than for eating," said EMU director Adell McMillan.

The Main Desk has operated at a deficit for the past two years, losing more than $13,000 over the 1981-82 school year, said board member John Dulcich.

The deficit was offset by food services revenue, he added.

Hours can't be cut to save money, because the desk serves as an information contact center and must stay open while the EMU building is open, McMillan said. Main Desk revenue has gone up in this past year even though it still operates at a deficit, she added.

Bookstore considers 10-percent discount

Sales at the University bookstore in January ended a four-month slide by increasing .34 percent over the same period last year, said bookstore manager Jim Williams at Tuesday's board of directors meeting.

Increased sales of used textbooks, art equipment, electronics, University merchandise and sporting goods offset a continued decline in new book sales, the manager's report said.

The 11-percent discount on new texts totaled $77,000 for the first 24 days of the month, which is one-fourth of last year's discount, Williams said. But he added the 50 cent restocking fee has cut the number of texts returned by students by 20 percent so far this term.

The board is still considering a new 10-percent discount on all books for the fiscal year beginning in July.

The discount could be a one-year experiment to gauge student response "in spite of the reduced text discount and what might be perceived as an increased hassle in having to present a student body card to receive the discount," director Muriel Jackson said.

The bookstore will publish a full-page annual report of 1981-82 in the Feb. 16 Emerald to show how the bookstore has used profits to increase student services, said Sara Yamahiro, the store's advertising and public relations manager who prepared the report.

ASUO reviews constitution

A special Constitution Review Committee has been appointed by ASUO Pres. C.J. Balfe to recommend changes in the ASUO Constitution.

The review committee will decide whether any changes are needed "to produce a more easily used document reflecting the changing needs of the student body and its organizations," Balfe said in a memorandum released Wednesday. The committee will solicit suggestions from students and student organizations, he added.

Committee recommendations possibly will be included on the ASUO election ballot.

The committee will be chaired by ASUO comptroller Alan Contreras, and will include Karsten Rasmussen, ASUO constitution committee chair; Sheila Schain, ASUO budget director; ASUO comptroller Kevin Kouns; Mike Prothe, Student University Affairs Board member; and two members to be appointed by the committee.

Can the University's $30 Academic Speed Reading Course be as good as the $500 Commercial Speed Reading Course?

Yes... and better!

With so much reading required for school, how can you afford not to take a reading improvement course? How can you afford not to take ours? New workshops begin in February.
