

Duck women lose at UW

The Oregon women's basketball team picked this weekend to relax, but Washington showed the Ducks that Hec Edmunson Pavillion on Saturday night is not the most restful place in the world.

The Huskies stormed the Ducks in the second half of the NorPac conference contest to ease out an 83-67 win. Washington went into the locker room at the half down 42-36, but the Huskies came back out to blitz the Ducks 17-4 in the opening minutes of the second half. During that stretch, the Ducks shot a measly 2-for-8 from the floor and turned the ball over four times.

"We didn't have the intensity to win," understated Oregon coach Elwin Heiny.

The Ducks lack of intensity showed with 30 turnovers. And the Huskies stayed with Ducks on the boards, snagging almost the same number as Oregon.

The Huskies victory Saturday is the first in 12 games against the Ducks.

Alison Lang and Helen Higgs paced the Ducks with 21 and 13 points respectively.

Higgs grabbed 12 rebounds and Lang dished off three assists. Karen Murray, with 25 points and nine rebounds, and Rene Avelino with 19 points and seven rebounds led the Huskies.

The loss dropped the Ducks to 8-3 in league action, and bumped them into a tie with California for second place. The Huskies moved up to a tie for fourth with San Jose State and gives them a chance at making the final four conference tourney March 5-6, in Eugene.

The loss marred what could have been a good road trip for the Ducks. Two days earlier Oregon slapped Washington State with an 86-70 loss.

Lang and Chris Metzger led the Ducks — Lang with a game high 30 points in just 26 minutes of game time and Metzger with 25 points, 10 rebounds and six assists in 31 minutes.

"We played well Thursday and did not play well Saturday," was all Heiny could muster about the road trip.

Heiny will try and use a 10-day break to tune the Ducks up for Oregon State and the upcoming conference tournament.

Blazers pick up fourth straight

PORTLAND (AP) — Jim Paxson scored 26 points and Calvin Natt added 22 to lead the Portland Trail Blazers to their fourth straight victory, a 104-95 National Basketball Association triumph over the Washington Bullets Sunday night.

Natt scored 14 of his 22 points in the third period, including eight in a row at the end of the period to stave off a Bullet rally.

Washington, behind Jeff Ruland, cut the Blazer lead to 70-66 with 2:30 left in the period.

Natt then had two free throws, a layup and a short jump shot to boost Portland's lead to 10.

The Blazers led by as many as 16 points in the final quarter, but the Bullets closed to within seven by converting on five three-point field goal attempts. Paxson scored seven points late in the quarter.

It was the 16th victory in 23 games for the Blazers, now 33-21 in the NBA's Pacific Division. Portland is eight games behind Los Angeles, the division leader.

Washington is 24-28 in the Atlantic Division, 21 games behind Philadelphia.

Ruland led Washington with 31 points and 15 rebounds, while Ricky Sobers added 18 points and Greg Ballard 15.

Mychal Thompson, with 12 rebounds and nine assists, helped Portland build an eight-point halftime lead. Portland led by 12 at the end of the third quarter.
