Compelled

As one of the targets of Randy Shepard's tirade against incidental fees, Students for a Nuclear Free Future feels compelled to respond.

Shepard seems to think "the ASUO" is meeting in some smoke-filled back room deciding to dish out enormous sums of money to any "subversive radical" groups which demands funding.

This is ridiculous.

The amount and the distribution of the incidental fee is determined not by the ASUO, but by the Incidental Fee Committee — seven students elected each year by the student body. The fees are allotted in public hearings which are, in fact, currently in progress.

SNUFF objects to being labeled "subversive," "socialist," "political" and a waste of money. SNUFF's primary goal is not to support any specific political campaign or political ideology but to educate the campus and the community about nuclear issues. For this SNUFF receives a whopping $220 — 0.0001 percent of the total incidental fee fund.

The ASUO and the University have traditionally recognized that education is much more than Shepard's narrow definition of it — classes. Education is diversity, an exchange of ideas and alternate opinions — yes, even those of "minorities and dissenters" like Asians and gays. Education is students learning from students as well as from professors.

Rather than advocating eliminating the funding of groups whose views are inconsistent with his, Shepard should find some like-minded students and form Students for a Radioactive Future or the Union of White Anglo-Saxon Heterosexuals Capitalists. The group could develop goals, a budget and request incidental-fee funding.

Finally, if Shepard really thinks the incidental fee is being used improperly, we suggest he do something about it instead of ranting to the Emerald. He should run for the IFC or support a candidate with his views, and he should attend the IFC hearings and voice his opinions. SNUFF feels sure the IFC members will give those opinions the attention they deserve.

Obliged

I am writing in reply to a letter in the Feb. 24 Emerald concerning the law which requires proof of registration with the Selective Service before financial aid is allotted.

First of all, Manny, you write of all these "rights" we have as American citizens. Let me ask — how did we get them? Our forefathers fought very hard (with their lives) to acquire them for us. I think we owe them at least enough gratitude to offer to protect their country in case of national emergency.

Remember also that registering for the draft does not mean you will be called upon to fight in a modern-day Vietnam. All the government wants to know is where to reach you in case that emergency takes place.

Also bear in mind that you are legally obliged, like the rest of your male peers, to register within 30 days of your 18th birthday. That was a law passed quite awhile ago.

What is wrong with punishing lawbreakers in more creative ways that will save the government money? Would you rather we sent you to jail where you wouldn't have to worry about school in the first place?

You must also remember that a bill must have overwhelming support throughout the nation before it becomes a law; people have to believe in it. Why don't you do some serious checking around before you assign morality on the population in general?

After all, rights aren't served to us on silver platters. With every right, every privilege that living in the United States entails, there comes responsibility. Shun your idealistic introversion and face up to them.

Suffered

It seems as though Randy Shepard has insisted on equal time for bigotry. Well, I have suffered through two of his letters and now have a proposal for him.

Go to the Soviet Union, Randy! You can alter a few phrases in your right-wing fantasy and be instantly accepted.

In the Soviet Union, suppression of dissent and alternatives to "official" attitudes is standard. In the meantime, he should keep in mind that we're not ready for an ideological church in America.

I wish Randy would be honest enough to admit that he's upset by differences in opinion rather than rant and rave about small amounts of money.

Disturbed

I am disturbed at the priorities the Incidental Fee Committee exhibits in their funding of students groups. It dumbfounds me that the IFC allocates such a large portion of funds for students' physical health ($56,000 for recreation and intramurals) and so little on their psychological well-being. Students funds for the Psychology Clinic were cut from a meager sum of $442 to nothing.

Granted, exercise is very important, but so is mental health. I suggest that the IFC make a more equal distribution of incidental fees in consideration of the students' whole self.

The funding of the University Psychology Clinic should be reinstated immediately.
