University has public hearing on student conduct revisions

The University will hold a public hearing today on a series of revisions to the student code of conduct.

The hearing will be held at 3 p.m. in Room 101 EMU. Muriel Jackson, assistant to the vice president for administration, will serve as hearing officer.

One amendment increases the jurisdiction of the code to include the time period between terms unless a student gives written notice to the University Registrar's office to terminate student status. The change is necessary to prevent students not technically enrolled in classes from using University services.

Another amendment broadens the definition of "student" to include applications for admission, housing, financial aid or other University services requiring student status. The change makes persons seeking student status accountable for the honesty of their statements in submitted materials.

Copies of the proposed amendments are available at several campus locations, including the library reference section and the offices of the University president, 110 Johnson Hall, and of the ASUO president in Suite 4, EMU.

Written and oral statements may be presented at the hearing, and written statements also may be sent to Jackson at 110 Johnson Hall before the hearing.

Police save woman in suicide attempt

A 23-year-old University student who tried to jump from the top floor of a downtown Eugene parking garage Monday was taken unharmed back to the psychiatric unit at Sacred Heart Hospital, according to the Eugene Police Department.

The woman, who also attempted suicide last week, had committed herself to the Johnson Unit of the hospital, police said. Tom Lawry, hospital community relations director, said Monday that the unit, a voluntary facility, cannot detain anyone not legally committed to the unit by the state.

According to a police report, Officer Robert Spinks was stopped by an unidentified city employee about 7:20 a.m. Monday. The employee told him the woman was threatening to jump off top ledge of the Overpark structure at 10th Avenue and Oak Street.

Spinks reportedly climbed to the northwest corner of the ledge where the woman sat. When he got within 10 feet of the woman, she yelled "Don't come any closer," according to the report.

The officer then moved behind the woman, grasped her around the waist and pulled her off the ledge. She was released to the Johnson Unit, according to police.

No citations were issued in the incident.
