Blazers upset Sonics, 108-97

SEATTLE (AP) — Mychal Thompson and Jim Paxson each scored 25 points Wednesday night to spark the Portland Trail Blazers to a 108-97 upset victory over Seattle in the opener of a National Basketball Association miniseries.

The underdog Blazers can wrap up the best-of-three series with a win in Portland Friday night. A third game, if necessary, will be played here Sunday. The winner of the series will face defending NBA champion Los Angeles.

Portland, which split six regular-season games with Seattle, led 59-45 at halftime and the Super Sonics never got closer than seven points in the second half.

Paxson had 16 of his points in the second half while Thompson tallied 15 in the second half.

Calvin Natt added 15 points and Darnell Valentine chipped in 13 for the Blazers.

Seattle was sparked by Gus Williams' 34 points, 16 in the third quarter. Jack Sikma added 23 for the Sonics.

Portland's biggest second-half lead in the third quarter was 16 points. Seattle cut the Blazers' advantage to seven points at 97-90 on a pair of Sikma free throws with 5:26 remaining.

But a Thompson layup with 5:10 to go and a Paxson layup with 4:13 remaining put Portland ahead 101-90.

Clippers coach sunk

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Paul Silas, victimized by injuries during his three years as head coach of the San Diego Clippers of the National Basketball Association, was fired Wednesday.

After a morning meeting with Silas, General Manager Paul Phipps announced that Silas' contract had not been renewed.

"We recognize that there have been some factors beyond Paul's control which contributed to the club's record during his tenure," Phipps said, in an apparent reference to the player injuries.

"We do feel, however, that the Clippers are at a turning point, and we believe the team's interests may be better served by some new direction on the court."

He said no decision had been made concerning a replacement.

Ducks sedate on letter-of-intent day

Wednesday's official opening of the basketball letter-of-intent season passed without any surprises for the Oregon basketball program.

Last week the Ducks got commitments from a pair of junior college players, but coach Don Monson was unable to corral the point guard he wanted. And unless a player who can fill one of the Ducks need appears on the scene in the next month, Monson will hold on to his remaining scholarships.

What the Ducks did get is 6-7 forward George Trapp and guard Chris Harper, who will come north from California Junior College. Trapp is a shooting forward with good quickness who comes from College of the Canyons and Harper is an off guard from Shasta Junior College.

"The two we did recruit will help us with our overall team quickness and some with our outside shooting," Monson said.

Monson battled the disadvantage of arriving at Oregon late and barely missed out on a pair of freshman. One, forward Derrick Riley from East Bakersfield, Calif., was lost to Fresno State. The other was 6-4 guard Scott Johnson who went to Southern Methodist. Johnson is from Meridan, Idaho, and was recruited by Monson at Idaho before he came to Oregon.

"With recruiting you never seem to get everyone you want," Monson said.

Monson indicated that he is willing to save his remaining scholarships for next year if no player who can help his programs surface before the signing deadline. "If there is somebody still available who can help us before May 15 then we'll go ahead and sign them. If not we'll put our scholarships in the bank and save them for next year."
