

Sandunga gets show on the road

When Sandunga kicked off the El Cinco de Mayo cultural celebration Thursday night before 140 people, the EMU Forum walls vibrated with a blend of Latin American, Indian and African rhythms.

As the music's tempo increased, so did the listeners' cat calls of approval. Sandunga members Ray Davis and Christina Papana, rhythms; Mary O'Conner, vocals; Armando Morales, vocals, flute and strings; and Joe Maquene and Nicolas Spycher, strings, played for almost two hours.

The festivities continue this afternoon with "salsa" music by Manteca at 4 p.m. in the EMU beer garden, and a folk concert by Almandina of Seattle at 8 p.m. in the Forum. Macchu-Picchu of California will play the Forum on Saturday at 8 p.m.

Mass jello consumption highlights festive week

The fourth annual Duck Week, with daily entertainment, contests and a street fair, is scheduled Sunday through next Friday.

The week-long event, sponsored by the Student University Relations Council, culminates with Parents' Weekend May 13-15. The parents' weekend events include faculty lectures, open houses, an awards luncheon and campus tours.

Fraternity and sorority members also are planning Greek Week activities to run concurrently with Duck Week events. Among the events planned are community service projects and several recreational and social events.

The programs are designed to promote student spirit and enthusiasm and to recognize student achievement, says Elissa Pankratz, Duck Week coordinator.

Highlighting Duck Week will be the annual John Belushi Commemorative Jello-Eating Contest, a showing of "Animal House," daily entertainment in the EMU, a Street Faire featuring goods and handicraft booths, a "Mystery Duck" contest and various performances by ethnic and foreign student groups.

Greek Week will feature a progressive dinner, serenades, games, a Canoe Fete and an air-band concert, with fraternity and sorority members imitating popular music groups. Greek students also will paint O-R-E-G-O-N on the six sections of the Hayward Field east grandstand.

For Duck Week information, contact Pankratz at SURC, Room 111 Susan Campbell Hall or call 686-5555. For Greek Week information, call the Interfraternity Council at 686-3701 or the Panhellenic Council at 686-3888.

Native Americans topic at 'Thanksgiving' dinner

A traditional Thanksgiving feast will highlight a Native American Family Traditions workshop from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday at the Native American Student Union Longhouse, 1606 Columbia St.
