

House OKs landlord-tenant bills

SALEM (AP) — The Oregon House on Thursday easily passed and sent to the Senate three measures that would give both renters and landlords additional rights under the state's landlord-tenant law.

Republican Rep. Norm Smith of Tigard said the measures had been agreed to by landlord and tenant organizations.

One bill, HB2554, would allow a tenant to recover damages if a landlord rented a dwelling that had been posted by local authorities as unlawful to occupy because of housing code violations "materially affecting health or safety."

The landlord could be required to pay the tenant up to two months' rent or twice the actual damages, whichever was greater.

Another measure, HB2553, would forbid landlords from retaliating, by raising rent or demanding eviction, because a tenant complained about an alleged violation of a written or oral rental agreement.

The third measure, HB2567, would permit a landlord to terminate a rental agreement if a renter moved from the residence and allowed someone else to live there without the landlord's permission.

The House unanimously approved and sent to the Senate a bill requiring doctors, midwives or others in charge of delivering a child to give the infant vitamin K within 24 hours after birth.

Rep. Fred Parkinson, R-Silverton, said he introduced HB2949 at the request of a Woodburn couple whose son died three weeks after his birth from a bleeding disease caused by lack of vitamin K. The vitamin helps produce a blood-clotting agent.

The son of Rick and Janet Sonnen was born at a Salem chiropractic clinic. Sonnen attended the House session Thursday, and Parkinson said she personally had worked on the measure for many months.

He said that although vitamin K routinely is administered after hospital births, the measure is needed because of the increasing frequency of home deliveries and other births outside of hospitals.

Former prisoners of war could get special auto license plates at no extra charge under another bill approved by the House.

The measure, which goes to the Senate, would allow plates saying "EX POW" to be issued for the regular two-year license fee of $20. Plates with custom letters on them usually cost $70 extra.

Democratic Rep. Max Rijken of Newport, floor manager for the bill, is a native Indonesian who was taken as a prisoner of war by the Japanese during World War II.

Rijken said more than 500 Oregonians could qualify for the special plates if HB2820 becomes law.

Another bill getting House approval would forbid putting more than one subject into a proposed county home rule charter amendment that is submitted to voters.

Rep. Mary Ford, R-Beaverton, said the measure is intended to prevent further situations such as one in Washington County in which a single ballot measure made sweeping changes in county government.

The bill goes to the Senate.

Earth First founder arrested

GALICE (AP) — Dave Foreman, co-founder of the radical Earth First environmental movement, was arrested Thursday after he tried to block a road leading to the controversial Bald Mountain Road construction site.

It was the second protest this week aimed at halting construction of the logging road north of the Kalmiopsis Wilderness.

Josephine County sheriff's deputies said protesters had dragged a snag on to the roadway, about 10 miles east of the construction site in the Siskiyou National Forest. Deputies then removed the log.

Foreman, 36, of Ely, Nev., was charged with disorderly conduct after he attempted to stand in front of a pick-up truck that was carrying the construction crew to the work site, said sheriff's Sgt. Frank Taus. Taus said the incident did not delay construction of the road.

Foreman was accompanied by Dave Willis of Ashland, who was confined to a wheelchair. Taus said Willis was not arrested because he didn't participate in trying to stop the truck.

Foreman organized Earth First with several other radical environmentalists in 1980.

Taus said he was taken into custody without incident and jailed in Grants Pass before posting bail. He is scheduled for arraignment Friday on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Deputies at the scene said Foreman jumped into the path of the truck and was forced to run backwards when the truck did not stop as quickly as he expected, Taus said. The truck stopped after Foreman tripped and fell.

Five protesters were arrested Tuesday after they blockaded a bulldozer at the construction site, about 25 air miles southwest of Grants Pass.

The five, all from Eugene, were charged with third-degree criminal mischief.

Including Foreman, 17 protesters have been arrested at the site in the last three weeks. The protesters are members of Earth First and the southern Oregon-based Kalmiopsis Action Alliance.
