Notables

Scottish singer/guitarist Dick Gaughan will perform with Irish musicians Kevin Burke, Micheal O Domhnaill, and Joe Burke at the Hult's Soreng on Wed., Oct. 19. Their Celtic music is acclaimed for its traditionally beautiful lyricism.

Maestro Ali Akbar Khan, hailed by some as "the greatest musician in the world" will be in the EMU Ballroom Sunday, Oct. 16, at 8 p.m. for a rare concert performance.

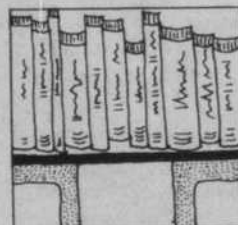

Classical guitarist Neill Archer Roan will be featured at the first Coffee Concert this Sunday, Oct. 16, at The Beanery, 790 E. 14th St. Music begins at 8 p.m., and tickets are available at the door on an available space basis. This is one of eight guitar concerts scheduled to be held monthly through May. Series tickets are $15.

No Nukes, the concert film featuring Jackson Browne, Bonnie Raitt and Crosby, Stills and Nash — among others — will show tonight, Fri., Oct. 7, in 180 PLC, at 7 and 9:15.

The first issue of former Merry Prankster Ken Babbs' magazine, "The Bugle," has hit the newsstands this week. On sale for $1, "it's designed to fill the reading void left by the demise of almost every publication in the area."

University Theatre season tickets need to be picked up at the box office Mon.-Sat., anytime between 12 p.m. and 4 p.m. Purchasing the season ticket for $14 has advantages: it's still guaranteed if lost, and you don't have to choose the same day or time for each performance. Individual performance tickets are available for $3.25.

Heroes rare in 'Cathedral'

"Cathedral"
Raymond Carver
Alfred A. Knopf, 1983
228 pages

Northwest writer Raymond Carver's latest collection of short stories, "Cathedral," is notable for depicting moments of insight, awakening and love into the otherwise depressing impossibility of modern life. It is often a sordid life, full of divorces and death, threats of violence and hints of debauched circumstance. The characters are modern people preoccupied with T.V., alcohol and sex.

In a Saturday Review interview earlier this month, Carver said these stories are "fuller and more interesting" than his previous collections. He said there is "an opening up in this book that there's not been in any of the other books." Carver has built his reputation on short fiction, and his earlier two books, "Will you please be quiet, Please," and "What We Talk About When We Talk About Love" have been widely read.

None of the twelve stories in "Cathedral" fails to be interesting and well-written, though some are inconclusive. Carver's characters flail about for the conclusion but fail to find it. Or perhaps the realization is one the character didn't want to find: the wife will not be returning, the father cannot be reconciled with the hated son.
