

Circle Jerks — off

The on-again, off-again, on-again W.O.W. Hall concert by Los Angeles-based "Thrash Rock" band the Circle Jerks is off-again — and that's definite.

The reasons weren't clear, according to Rob Waldman of Northwest Concerts. He called them "unmitigated circumstances" and less than forward actions by the Circle Jerks.

Husker Du, the second band, was willing to play the concert for free and twice as long. However, Waldman decided to cancel the concert. Refunds for advance price tickets are available at place of purchase or W.O.W. Hall Tuesday night.

Pastor eats words perched on roof

HEYWORTH, Ill. (AP) — A 35-year-old preacher ate his dinner, if not his words, atop his 75-foot-tall church Sunday, fulfilling a promise made to his congregation more than a year ago.

Concerned about what he felt was lackluster attendance at the small church, the Rev. Bill Tabb pledged during his first service more than a year ago that he would eat his main Sunday meal on the steep roof if 75 people showed up at one of his services.

Only 11 people were in the pews of the Church of God when he made the promise, and Tabb forgot about the tongue-in-cheek offer.

But when 77 people showed up at his Oct. 9 service in this central Illinois town, Tabb was reminded of the vow.

About a half-hour after Sunday's service, Tabb stepped through an attic window onto the church roof. As 75 church members cheered below, Tabb walked up a mild grade to the overhang of the roof's top level, took a few steps up a makeshift ladder, and then crept like a cat burglar up the roof's steep grade.

He reached the pinnacle, where a small white table and straight-back chair rested securely on a wooden platform.

He was followed by congregation member Steve Isaacson, who performed the duties of waiter.

Tabb finished his lofty repast in a leisurely 12 minutes and climbed back down to cheers.

PEACE CORPS Special Work For Special People

Peace Corps volunteers are people pretty much like you. People with commitment and skills who have assessed their lives and decided they want to be of service to others in a troubled world.

The problems our volunteers deal with overseas aren't new. Such as the cycle of poverty that traps one generation after another because they're too busy holding on to get ahead. The debilitating effects of malnutrition, disease, and inadequate shelter. Education and skills that are lacking, and the means to get them too.

Your college training qualifies you to handle more of these problems than you might think. Such as teaching nutrition and health practices; designing and building bridges and irrigation systems; working on reforestation and fisheries programs; introducing better agricultural techniques; advising small businesses and establishing cooperatives; or teaching math and science at the secondary level.

The number of jobs to do is nearly as great as the number of volunteers who have served since 1961: Nearly 90,000. More volunteers are being chosen now for two-year assignments beginning in the next 3-12 months in Africa, Asia, Latin America, and the Pacific.

Our representatives will be pleased to discuss the opportunities with you.
