chicken, ribs, scalloped potatoes, miniature almond tarts and chocolate cake.

"It all looks so good," the governor exclaims, popping a cheese nibble into his mouth. Nils Hult - whose name graces Eugene's performing arts center empties his glass before try-

A photograph of them all dining on the yellow tablecloths would be in order, I think. But Associate Athletic Director Bill Byrne does not share my idea.

"Are you going to ask all Garland. "I think it's a lot more than what people imagine. We put in a lot of hours a day and go seven days a week. It's really a team last season, says the work gets to be tiring but its worthwhile when it gets done.

Taylor, who worked with the

"It is really time consuming,"

Taylor says, "It cuts into school time once in a while but you just have to find a way to work

'We are like the players, they lanagers

these people if they want their pictures taken?," he asks

Photographers need not be allowed in the club, he says, because it is a "private area."

"The stadium is entirely funded by private funds. No public funds go into it whatsoever."

The buffet ends and most of the diners head for their yellow seats in the covered donor section. Food is cleared away, and $10,000 places are made for those remaining.

Late in the fourth quarter, when Oregon is holding onto a narrow lead and the fans are going crazy, the situation in the stadium club is much more subdued. Inside, the external shouts of thousands are comfortably muffled. The regular Autzen announcer cannot be heard, so the play-by-play is piped in by radio. '

"The governor's talking to the right people here," the club's usher observes.

I leave to sit with the wrong people and watch the real game. Analysis by Doug Nash

Continued from Page 3B

their jobs."

Conrad, who has worked with the Oregon football team for about six years, is always a manager on the go. If its checking in game equipment or practice equipment, Conrad will be there.

"You just have to do the things that need to be done," says Conrad. "As soon as you have one job done there is always another one ready to be worked on.

"The work is really tough during the season but at the end it's nice to look back and see all the things you have done.'

The relationship between the managers and the players is good. The managers know the players have a job to do and vice versa. They don't try and get into each other's way.

"I think the player's respect us," says Garland. "They realize that if we weren't here they wouldn't get a lot of the benefits they do now."

By Steve Turcotte Photo by Steve Crowell

SHOJI'S

Student Special

Enjoy a Free Beverage with the purchase of a dinner by showing your U of O I.D.

(One free beverage per meal.) Offer does not include the Harakiri)

Open 6 days a week Tuesday - Sunday 2645 Willamette St. Eugene

Om Pizza

4 - 6 Wednesdays

Buy a slice, GET 1 FREE

Open: 1-12 Mon.-Thurs. 1-1 Fri. & Sat.

1473 E. 19th. • 343-8023

also have to find the time to do around it.

full-time job."

Continued from Page 6B

"Since you are removed from the emotion of the game it gives you a chance to clear your head and get yourself together," says Toledo. "It's tough to concentrate on the field with all the players around, fans behind you and the band playing.'

Walker, without hesitation, agrees.

'The emotion on the field really makes it tough to keep control of what's going on," he says. "Up in the booth, you are separated from that environment and able to keep persepective on what's going on.'

Even though they are separated from the team on the field during game days, both coaches indicate that watching the game up high in the press box gives them a better idea of how the team is progressing.

"You really can't see anything on the field when you are down there," says Toledo. "Up higher, things are 100-percent better. It's the best place to watch the game. Also, you have everything you need right in front of you."

"I like it better up there because you are able to watch the game better," says Walker. "It's kind of like watching game

By Steve Turcotte Photo by Ken Kromer

NEW YORK (AP) - Boston General Manager Red Auerbach, All-Star forward Larry Bird and two other players have been fined by the National Basketball Association for their conduct during a Celtics' exhibition game against the Philadelphia 76ers, the league announced Tuesday.

Auerbach, the Celtics' former coach, received the biggest fine, $2,500, for leaving his seat in the stands and racing onto the court to verbally attack the officials and members of the 76ers following a first-quarter fight involving Bird and Philadelphia forward Marc lavaroni in Sunday night's preseason game at Boston Garden.

"A general manager has no

IEEIH

Ignore them and they will go away

and

X-Rays as needed $25

call for appointment 746-6517

place on the court at any time during an NBA game," Scotty Stirling, the NBA's vice president-operations. "Auerbach's actions were embarrassing and intolerable. Bird was fined $2,000 and lavaroni was fined $1,000.

Stirling said Bird received the larger fine because not only did he participate in the original altercation, but renewed the fight after it had broken up.

Boston guard Gerald Henderson was fined $500 for punching Philadelphia rookie Sedale Threatt in the third quarter.

All three players' fines included $250 for being ejected from

FALL SWEATER SALE

Shetland Wool Pullover Sweaters

100% wool sweaters, great for both the indoors and outdoors. Available in navy only. Sizes are available in medium and large. Regularly $26.50

Now sale priced at $14.95

Open Monday thru Saturday, 9:30 a.m. - 5:30 p.m. Sunday, Noon to 5:00 57 W. Broadway Eugene Downtown Mall

The 'Western Look' --Capezio style is here at the Spotted Mule!

Capezio - the fashion boot America's women stand tall in...

...from just $66, as well as a huge selection of traditional western boots by such famous makers as Tony Lama, Nicona, Justin and Dan Post.

And to complete the 'Look' ...

Jeans! Try on a pair of Wranglers or Lees, and just for the ladies --Kenny Rogers jeans by Karmon.

