

Netters squeak by Dons, Santa Clara

By Brent Paz

Oregon's volleyball team kept its playoff hopes alive in the NorPac race by sweeping the University of San Francisco and Santa Clara last weekend at McArthur Court.

The Ducks pounded USF in four games Friday, 15-13, 10-15, 15-7, 15-10. The next night, Oregon rebounded from a two-game deficit, squeaking by Santa Clara, 10-15, 9-15, 15-10, 15-5, 15-8. The wins moved the Ducks to 5-2 in NorPac and 20-12 overall.

Oregon struggled to victory against two California teams with losing records (USF, 8-16, and USC, 9-13). A loss would have dimmed the Ducks' chances for a playoff berth in the NorPac tournament.

The Broncos jumped on the Ducks quickly Saturday night. USC took the first two games and led 9-3 in the third as Oregon coach Chris Voelz saw her team's tournament chances hanging in the balance.

Lisa Gemoya, still nursing a slight hamstring pull, came off the bench in the second game and ignited Cathy Hill and Sue Harbour — the combination had several kills in the third game. With Gemoya setting, Oregon scored seven straight at one point and claimed a come-from-behind victory, 15-10.

Oregon dominated the match from then on, winning the next two games easily, 15-5 and 15-8. Again, Harbour and Hill were effective, All-American candidate Harbour getting 33 kills and Hill 18 in the victory.

The win enabled Oregon to keep pace in the league standings, but the Ducks' performance was far from outstanding.

"It started out really frustrating," said senior co-captain Barb Lutz. "The audience was disappointed in our play, but we got that needed kick to get going."

The USF-Oregon clash on Friday night was a dud. Neither team would want to put the game in their highlight films, but Oregon won a battle of errors in four games. USF had 19 service errors compared to Oregon's 10.

"It was a struggle and not a beautifully performed match," Voelz said.

Both teams looked rusty, but Hill rose above the follies. The senior had 15 kills, four solo blocks, and one service ace to lead the Ducks over the hapless Lady Dons. USF sunk to 8-17, 2-3 in NorPac.

"We did not execute fundamentally very well, but Cathy Hill had a great match," Voelz said.

Despite the sweep, the Ducks received a major blow to their NorPac chances last Thursday when Voelz learned that outside hitter Cynthia Shepherd would be lost for the season with a fractured bone in the lower leg. She joins Connie Riel and Shauna Koenig, two other starters sidelined for the year.

Oregon returns to action Tuesday night for a non-conference tilt against arch-rival Oregon State. OSU, ranked 18th nationally, has beaten the Ducks four times this year, the last time in five games.

The Ducks will start a makeshift lineup that includes three freshman — Heidi Eakin, Susan Payne and Andrea Kent — starting for injured regulars.

The return of Gemoya is still a key for Oregon. The junior played Saturday, but her movement was limited. Voelz probably will rest Gemoya and counter with Hill and Harbour at the setter position.

"You hate to do that, but it's like having one great quarterback and nobody really ready to go in the wings," Voelz said.

As usual, Sue Harbour was outstanding for Oregon, racking up 33 kills in a win over Santa Clara Saturday.
