Britain plans peace force

LONDON — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher confirmed Sunday that the British-led Commonwealth is trying to form a peacekeeping force to patrol Grenada and oversee a return to democracy once the U.S. invaders withdraw.

Spokesmen for the 48-nation Commonwealth declined to give details of proposals being drawn up by the organization's secretary-general, Sir Shridath Ramphal.

Asked about a Commonwealth force during a telephone call-in program on the British Broadcasting Corp., Thatcher said, "This is being talked about. But I think it's important that all pockets of resistance are cleared up by the United States before any Commonwealth force goes in."

Accounts printed in the Sunday Times, Sunday Telegraph and Observer newspapers indicated Ramphal hoped to gain troop contributions from Canada, Australia, several Caribbean members of the Commonwealth and possibly Britain.

Thatcher said her government would be "sympathetic" to calls for assistance in returning Grenada to democratic rule.

"After all we did set up a democracy in Grenada in 1974," she said, referring to the year the small Caribbean island gained its independence from Britain. "I would be prepared to give help to Grenada again."

Kush mountain range, 1,400 miles to the east on the border between Afghanistan and Pakistan, shaking Islamabad and reaching as far as India's Kashmir state. There were no immediate reports of casualties or damage. More than 12 hours later, a strong quake shook southwestern Japan, but no casualties were reported.

The devastating quake struck Turkey at 7:12 a.m. (11:12 p.m. EST Saturday) and was felt in mountainous provinces bordering Iran, Syria and Iraq.

Nightfall and intermittent snowfall in several areas hampered rescue efforts. A local army corps mobilized all its soldiers to help the survivors and clear debris in communities reached earlier in the day.

Dropping temperatures threatened thousands of homeless survivors in remote towns, local officials said. Temperatures of 35 degrees Fahrenheit were expected.

Authorities said the quake was believed to be centered in Erzurum and Kars provinces, where most of the damage was done, but it also shook the provinces of Bitlis, Mus, Diyarbakir, Bingol, Van and Malatya, according to the martial law command of the eastern region.

'Miss Lillian' dies at 85

AMERICUS — Lillian Carter, the opinionated and outspoken mother of former President Jimmy Carter, died Sunday at age 85.

Carter had been at Americus-Sumter County Hospital for about a week. The former president and his wife, Rosalynn, had been at the hospital for the day.

It was the second death in the family in just over a month. Evangelist Ruth Carter Stapleton, Jimmy Carter's sister, died Sept. 26 at age 54 after a months-long struggle with pancreatic cancer.

"Miss Lillian," as her neighbors in Plains, Ga., called her, lived on the fringes of politics for most of her life, but was rarely shy about expressing her opinions. In 1980,

Carter created headlines by saying that if she had $1 million, she would hire a "hit man" to kill Iran's Ayatollah Khomeini.

And in a September 1981 interview, she accused Nancy Reagan of ruining the White House with her "Hollywood kind of taste."

In 1966, after seeing an advertisement for the Peace Corps which promised "age is no barrier," Carter signed up as a volunteer. She spent two years in India at a family planning clinic as the Peace Corps' oldest volunteer.

She campaigned actively for her son when he ran for governor of Georgia in 1970, but her role in his 1976 presidential campaign, when he defeated Gerald Ford, was more sedate. Her job was to care for granddaughter Amy, then 8, the only Carter child left at home.

Jackson to try for vote

NEW YORK — The Rev. Jesse Jackson announced Sunday he will seek the 1984 Democratic presidential nomination and said he would try to choose a female running mate.

In an interview recorded for the CBS-TV program "60 Minutes," the civil rights leader said he would formally announce his candidacy Thursday in Washington. He is seeking to become the first black presidential candidate nominated by a major party.

Although many black political leaders have said they will not support him, fearing such a campaign would be divisive, Jackson said, "No candidate can expect to have unanimous support from any given community."

Jackson said he will try to win votes from younger Americans.

"Twenty-five percent of all the eligible black voters are between he ages of 18 and 24," Jackson said. "The group had been voting at about a 10 percent level. It's obvious it would move above 50 percent now."

Jackson said he wants to be president because "I'm concerned about our measure for greatness."

Killer quake hits Turkey

ISTANBUL, Turkey — A major earthquake struck eastern Turkey early Sunday and officials said at least 509 people were killed. Newspapers said 50 villages were leveled, and the death toll was expected to climb.

About three hours earlier a quake rolled through the Hindu
