

Netters ace No. 7 Texas

A win over seventh-ranked University of Texas Saturday highlighted Oregon's appearance in the UCLA Invitational volleyball tournament this weekend.

The Ducks rallied behind a combined 22 kills from Sue Harbour and Cathy Hill to hand Texas a 15-7, 5-15, 15-12 defeat.

Oregon started the tournament with a 15-8, 15-12 win over Pepperdine University Friday night, but lost a hard-fought decision to 12th-ranked Brigham Young University, 15-7, 5-15, 13-15.

After upsetting Texas Saturday, Oregon met UCLA for the right to enter the tournament quarterfinals. The third-ranked Bruins snuffed Oregon's hopes with a 15-2, 15-13 win.

Still, Duck coach Chris Voelz was moved to call the win over Texas "a great team victory."

The Invitational featured 12 of the nation's top 20 teams.

With the two win, two-loss performance in Los Angeles, Oregon is now 22-15 on the season.

More importantly though, the Ducks are a fourth-place 5-2 in the NorPac Conference. The top four teams qualify for the league's post-season tournament. Oregon is hanging onto the last spot behind University of Pacific (7-0), San Jose State University (6-0) and Oregon State (6-1).

The Ducks are one-half game ahead of 19th-ranked University of California (4-2). The two teams play in Berkeley, Calif., on Nov. 11.

Harbour received conference plaudit last week, being named NorPac Conference volleyball player of the week after she nailed 45 kills in Oregon wins over University of San Francisco and University of Santa Clara.
