

government and research facilities.

"The ideal team could be a political science major, an artist and an architecture student," he says.

Students have from 8 tonight until noon Saturday to design their societies, which Lakeman says should attempt to be free of Earth's evils and troubles.

Contestants should keep in mind that the 10,000 people being transported from Earth to Titan will represent several cultures.

The 15 architecture professors who are judging the competition will base their decisions on the comprehensiveness of the project, the number of issues dealt with and the quality of the coverage, Lakeman says.

Although all projects must include a drawing, the ideals and issues of Titan can come in any form.

"Conceivably, it could be a poem," Lakeman says.

Students should bring a $2 entry fee to Lawrence Hall, Room 283, where there is a large "command console" with examples of what a project could look like.

Projects will be displayed in the Lawrence courtyard Saturday, beginning at 1 p.m., and judges will select the winner by 4 p.m. and make the official announcement at the architecture school's "Beaux Arts Costume Ball," which starts at 9 p.m. Saturday at Campbell Club in Lawrence Hall.

Jurors and alternates chosen in Downs' trial

EUGENE (AP) — Twelve jurors and three alternates were selected Thursday to judge whether Elizabeth Diane Downs shot her three children for the man she loved.

The proceedings were recessed after the nine-woman, three-man jury and three women alternates were chosen.

Opening statements were scheduled this morning before Lane County Circuit Judge Gregory Foote. Attorneys said the jurors would view the site of the shootings, the car in which the children were shot, the hospital to which they were taken and two residences.
