

Anyone for Crazy 8s?

The two-tone movement is alive and well in Corvallis, Oregon. Corvallis?

The Crazy 8s, who hail from Corvallis, will be playing the Outdoor Beer Garden in the Alder Street tennis courts today starting at 4 p.m. There is a $1 admission charge.

This eight-piece band has been playing up and down the I-5 corridor since 1982, when elements of The Sneakers and The Cheeks merged to form The Crazy 8s.

The band's present line-up consists of Todd Duncan, alto sax and lead vocals; Joe Johnson, tenor sax and vocals; Mike Regan, bass guitar; Casey Shaar, keyboards and vocals; Carl Smith, percussion and vocals; Tim Tubb, trombone and vocals; Mark Wanaka, guitar and vocals; and Rick Washington, drums.

The "8s" play a spicy form of Jamaican reggae, classic urban soul and English skat. To call The Crazy 8s' music danceable is an understatement.

Lecture to focus on waste site

The geography department will sponsor a presentation on America's first permanent nuclear waste repository Thursday at 4 p.m. in 106 Condon Hall.

Richard Phillips, a graduate teaching fellow in the University geography department, will show color slides of tunnels, shafts, rock exposures and dune fields at the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant, near Carlsbad, New Mexico.

Phillips recently issued a report about WIPP, which is designed to receive all the plutonium waste from the nuclear weapons program.

In his report, Phillips contends government agencies are hiding geologic reports and data unfavorable to the WIPP site, which is now being excavated in bedded salt formations.

In his presentation, Phillips also will show correct and incorrect maps and geologic cross-sections, as well as color aerial photographs, gravity surveys, borehole data and water balance analysis.

Coffee and refreshments will be served at 3:30 p.m. Phillips welcomes questions and suggestions during and after the presentation.

Course set for 10K charity race

The third annual Country Run, a 10K race and two-mile fun run which winds through the scenic roads off Lorane Highway, is scheduled to begin at 9:30 a.m. Saturday.

The run will benefit the Eugene Outreach Boys and Girls Aid Society, assisting pregnant unwed girls with adoption, foster or group home care and family counseling. The program is staffed with volunteer teams who maintain a 24-hour hotline that receives an average of 150 local calls per month from girls needing help.

All registered participants will receive a free T-shirt after paying an $8 registration fee. Entrants can register at Nike Eugene, Feets in the 5th Street Public Market or Feets Plus in the Fifthpearl Building. The deadline for entering on the day of the race is between 8:15 a.m. and 9 a.m. For more information, call 484-7052.

A COLLEGE DEGREE . . . FOR WHAT?

Individuals with a passion for improving the status quo should know about a career training program in social activism called LIFE COURSE PLANNING. Researched and developed over the past 14 years, Life Course Planning is an educational prototype for proactive problem solving and planned change in all aspects of life (e.g., marriage, family, and career). It is being offered as a supplement to a Master's or Doctoral degree by Life Course Options, Inc., an Oregon grown non-profit educational and research organization.

Life Course Planning is the product of a pioneering social experiment in Mentoring and Extended Family conducted by the staff of Life Course Options in their own lives. The staff personally experimented with these concepts in order to discover their value for solving contemporary career and relationship problems. The positive results of this "activist" approach to problem solving led to the development of Life Course Planning and enabled Life Course Options to verify the efficacy of its program before offering it to others.

Life Course Options is looking for a select number of graduate students, academics, and professionals to participate as Apprentices in a longitudinal study of its career training program. The objective of the study is to empirically demonstrate Life Course Planning's potential for teaching people how to prevent, rather than fall victim to, the social and economic problems they face in today's rapidly changing world. In exchange for participation, individuals will receive an education in Life Course Planning, free of charge, and be afforded a unique opportunity to join a social experiment in Mentoring and Extended Family.

To be eligible, you must be ready to make a long term commitment to your personal and professional success, willing to experiment with new ideas, and able to change yourself as the first step toward improving the status quo. If you feel you qualify, CALL (503) 245-1725 or send a resume and cover letter stating your reasons for wanting to participate in this study to Anne Wilkinson, Executive Director.
