IFC votes to clear up old debts

The newly hired members of the Incidental Fee Committee voted to clear up the outstanding debts of various programs as well as set its own spending limits for the summer session at a meeting held June 7.

The Committee directed its first request at the Model United Nations, voting 6-0 that the group repay the more than $400 it overspent last year, according to IFC member Mary Kay Menard. Based on IFC Resolution 3, which states that "all IFC funded programs shall be responsible for the repayment of their previous year debts to the ASUO Surplus Account," the program will be held liable

The IFC also passed 6-0 a resolution limiting the summer subcommittee's spending to $2,500. This money will be used to fund the needs of various programs, such as the Student Campaign for Disarmament - formerly SNuFF - which the IFC allotted $670 to fund its summer campus film series, Menard says.

The resolution is an attempt to keep the three-member subcommittee's spending manageable, Menard says. The group will need the approval of other IFC members if expenditures exceed the $2,500 limit.

Seminar to discuss democracy

Prominent Oregon political party leaders, elected public officials, lobbyists, journalists and political scientists will gather at the University through June 30 for an American politics seminar for high school social studies teachers.

The Taft Seminar for Teachers will be conducted at the University for the second straight year. Sponsored by the New York City-based Robert A. Taft Institute of Government, the seminar will focus on American democracy and the two-party system.

Congressman Jim Weaver, Oregon Secretary of State Norma Paulus, Attorney General Dave Frohnmayer, Supreme Court Justice Wallace Carson, Oregon Senate Pres. Edward Fadeley and Sen. Margie Hendrickson are among the 50 Oregon political and judicial experts scheduled to conduct workshops during the seminar.

Topics include "Oregon and National Politics in Perspective," "Party Conventions," "Women as Candidates and Elected Officials" and "Elections in Oregon.

The purpose of the seminar is to help teachers deepen their understanding and appreciation of the American two-party system and to underline the compelling need for informed citizen participation in self-government, according to James Klonoski, political science professor and seminar director.
