Barnes' TD kills Cal

By Brent De La Paz
Of the Emerald

It was bound to happen. The Oregon football team hadn't beaten the University of California in Berkeley since John F. Kennedy was campaigning across the country for president. But Saturday, the ghosts of not winning in the Bay Area since 1960 were put to rest as Duck quarterback Chris Miller lofted a 31-yard touchdown pass to Lew Barnes with 53 seconds remaining to vault Oregon past Cal, 21-14 at Memorial Stadium.

More importantly, the Ducks remained undefeated, 3-0, and the win was Oregon's best start since Len Casanova's 1965 team won its first three games.

"We didn't play real well at times, but we made the big plays," said Brooks on a victory which propelled the Ducks to 1-0 in Pac-10 play.

Big plays have been Oregon's trademark this year. The Cal contest was no different.

Barnes leaping reception over Cal cornerback Ray Noble was the loudest explosion of the Ducks' big-play day.

"He (Barnes) was the last read. I just told him on the way back from the last play to go out and hesitate to see if he could beat him (Noble)," said Miller of the winning play.

Offensive coordinator Bob Toledo echoed the results of the Miller-to-Barnes hookup in the end zone.

"It was a great throw," said Toledo. "We just told him (Miller), don't throw an interception or don't get sacked so we can be in a position to kick the field goal to win it....He solved all our problems."

The Duck defense set up the winning score when defensive tackle Dave Maley forced Cal's Ed Barbero to fumble on the Cal 44 with 2:34 left in the game. Oregon linebacker Dan Devaney pounced on the loose ball and the Ducks were back in business.

"I wasn't totally pleased with our defense, but we made plays when we had to make them. That was the important thing," said Brooks.

Barnes' touchdown catch restored Miller who made an error of judgement on another drive in the fourth quarter. Miller tossed an errant lateral to tailback Tony Cherry on a third-and-two at the Cal 24. The ball ended up on the Cal 41 for a 17-yard loss and no chance for Oregon kicker Matt MacLeod to try a field goal.

"The fullback was in the way of the pitch, so I had to wait," said Miller. "I probably should have held the ball and followed in using the blockers."

Devaney's fumble recovery gave Miller a chance to redeem himself.

"They showed a real good attitude in not giving up," said Toledo when the Ducks could have folded like past teams. However, the 1984 version is
