legislative leaders.

A consultant report and higher education staff recommendations on the proposed Budget Allocation System model were submitted to the board for evaluation Wednesday. The board approved a staff recommendation to accept the consultants' report when it met in regular session Friday.

Davis also addressed several key non-fiscal issues at the retreat, including possible implementation of a semester system for the state's colleges and universities.

"I feel that the most effective and efficient structure for teaching and learning is the semester rather than the three quarter system," Davis asserted. He said that at the retreat he invited representatives of individual state schools to obtain and study faculty and student input on the semester system and report their findings to the board.

According to Davis, the semester system could be implemented in Oregon no earlier than the 1986-87 fiscal year. He said that the board would give institutions an opportunity to reorganize curricula and reassign faculty members to give schools maximum productivity under such a new system.

Davis also said that the board could decide by December whether to implement the system statewide, could leave the matter up to individual institutions, or could leave the current quarter system in place.

Board member Gene Chao of Portland said at the regular session Friday that he would prefer to see such a system implemented by all eight schools in the state higher education system.

Davis said that he is interested in developing a statewide telecommunication system to exchange data and information between colleges and universities. Administrative information, research data and library information also would be exchanged through such a system. Davis said that "everything from telephones to televisions and computers" would be employed by such a system.

"This would enable us to develop teaching to off-campus sites around the state," Davis explained.

The chancellor also addressed the granting of honorary degrees by state colleges and universities, a practice that has fallen by the wayside at some schools. He emphasized that current board policy does not prohibit state schools from granting honorary degrees but that the board does not encourage the practice. "It's strictly a prerogative of the individual institution," Davis explained.

The University has not granted honorary degrees since the 1940s, preferring instead to give distinguished service awards to worthy alumni and other citizens.

Nationally, the practice of granting honorary degrees has come under fire in recent years because of a tendency to grant such honors to less-than-worthy recipients. Davis doesn't see this as a problem at Oregon's state colleges and universities.

Davis said that some state institution presidents indicated that they will recommend candidates for honorary degrees this year. Under present board policy, the names of potential honorary degree recipients must be submitted to the board for approval by March 1 of the year such a degree will be conferred.

Your Toughest College Assignment... Paying For It!

8% Loans available for first time borrowers.*

It takes more than a good mind to get through college or vocational school. It takes a lot of money.

But money should be the least of your worries, and that's where Far West Federal Bank can help.

Far West has Guaranteed Student Loans to help you spend more time getting your education and less time worrying about how you're going to pay for it.

As an undergraduate, and enrolled at least half time, you can borrow as much as $2,500 a year, and as a graduate student, you can receive up to $5,000 a year. Plus, you don't have to begin repaying your loan until at least six months after you graduate or are no longer enrolled at least half time in school.

Many institutions also require a co-signer, but at Far West no co-signature is necessary.

There's no worry, even if you don't have a credit rating. And, Far West does not require a previous or current account relationship.
