Candidates says '2' may pass

Oregon voters will probably pass Ballot Measure 2, Carl DiPaolo said Thursday. DiPaolo is the Republican candidiate for state representative in District 39, which includes the Santa Clara-River Road area.

'A majority of voters, at least in District 39, are going to say 'yes' to Measure 2 and put $50 back in their pockets every month," DiPaolo said at a meeting of the Rubicon Society.

DiPaolo said he did not support the measure because it is "too radical," but he said the new Legislature would have to act quickly to counter the effects of cuts to funding for local services.

Recent defeats of local school board levies and the defeat of Lane Community Colleges levy last month are indications of the voters' intentions of cutting their taxes. In the past year, 80 percent of school board levies were defeated in the polls, he said.

DiPaolo predicted the measure would cause immediately cutbacks of library services, senior centers and public schools. "The schools are probably going to drop busses first," he said.

DiPaolo criticized his Democratic opponent Ron Eachus's recommendation that the Legislature create a task force to deal with the problem.

Restructuring the state income tax schedule to make it more progressive is one way of making up the funds lost because of the measure, he said.

Currently, Oregon taxes most wage earners at a flat rate of 10.8 percent. A progressive schedule would tax those with higher incomes at a higher rate.

However, DiPaolo said he would not raise the rate on higher incomes too much, since these incomes are often the source of investment dollars.

On other issues, DiPaolo said he supported plans for a new science building to be built at the University. "The University of Oregon brings an awful lot of money into the area," he said.

DiPaolo also said he supported a 20-day deadline for voter registration and opposed the closing of the state-run School for the Blind in Salem.

He also opposes Ballot Measure 3, which would create a citizen utility board to represent consumers at rate hearings before the Public Utility Commissioner.

Bagels kick off gathering

The Bay'it Project, a home of Jewish graduate and undergraduate students, welcomes Jewish students and community members to get acquainted from 7-9 p.m. Sunday.

University Pres. Paul Olum and Rabbi Myron Kinberg of Eugene will be there to join in kicking off the Jewish New Year. The High Holiday season ends at sundown tomorrow, with the close of Yom Kippur, the Jewish Day of Atonement.

Worship services for Yom Kippur will be held tonight at 7 p.m. in Beall Hall, and continue throughout tomorrow beginning at 9 a.m. at Temple Beth Israel, 42 W. 25th Ave. Students can purchase tickets for $10 at the services. Call the temple at 485-7218 for additional information.

At Sunday's gathering, bagels and lox and other refreshments will be served. The open house, located at 2266 Alder, is co-sponsored by the Bay'it Project and the Jewish Student Union. Call 345-3919 for more information.

Soup kitchen offers food to low-income families

Beginning Monday, the Community Family Soup Kitchen will resume serving free nutritious meals to needy families between 5:30 p.m. and 7 p.m. every Monday, Wednesday and Friday. The new site will be the Patterson Community School at 1510 W. 15th Ave. in Eugene.

The policy of serving families only (couples, or a child or children accompanied by one or both parents) will continue. The "families only" policy is to prevent duplication of services provided at the Eugene Mission. No proof of need will be more than 100 meals three times a week. Meals will include soup, bread and butter, milk, coffee and tea. Cheese, salad and fruit will also be served when available.

The soup kitchen was conceived and is maintained by representatives of many different area-groups, agencies and churches concerned about assisting the needy people in Lane County. Community support is vital in the form of volunteers and donations of food and money.

SUAB adds five to board, more needed

The Student University Affairs Board appointed five students to its 18-member board of directors Thursday. Elected were: Christopher Healy, a senior, in the journalism post; Mark Thorpe, a sophomore, to the Anthropology / Psychology / Sociology post; Molly Maudling, a senior, to the Telecommunications/Speech position; and Christie Siebens, a senior, for the Education slot.

Jeff Pennington, SUAB vice chair, says there are still many positions open for students in 24 University governance committees, each working under the University Assembly.

"Experience and an expressed interest are the qualities we look for in applicants," Pennington says. "Experience, however, is not a prerequisite to be on a committee.

"These committees are often the first step for students to gain leadership experience, as well as gain a broad perspective on University Affairs," he adds.

The deadline for applications has been extended until Tuesday at 5 p.m. For more information, call the SUAB office at 686-3720.
