

People's law lectures continue

The People's Law School will continue its series of informal lectures and discussions on various topics on law. Organized by a group of University law students, the classes are free, registration is not required, and everyone is welcome to attend the series in whole or in part. "The goal is to educate members of the public about various areas of the law," said coordinator Martin W. Jaqua. "We try to help people be less frightened and have less anxiety about it."

Teams of three to five law students give a brief, informal lecture and then usually open up the classes to questions. Although it is not permissible to give individual legal advice, the students can clarify an issue in the law through a hypothetical situation.

"Those who have attended the sessions in the past left feeling that it was time well spent," continued Jaqua. "Even if you don't have an immediate situation where you need information, it's a good idea to be familiar with the law, if only to communicate better with a lawyer."

All classes are taught at the Ida Patterson Community School, 1510 W. 15th Ave., from 7 to 9 p.m. on Tuesday evenings under the following schedule:

•Understanding the Legal System. Oct. 9. Describing the various court systems, how laws are made, basic legal procedure, legal research and how and when to find an attorney.

•Landlord/Tenant Law. Oct. 16. Describing what your rights and obligations are as a landlord or tenant and Oregon's Residential Landlord and Tenant Act and model leases.

•Wills. Oct. 23. Discussing when you need a will, how to write your own will, how to avoid probate, and when you need to hire a lawyer.

•Small Claims Court. Oct. 30. Describing how to file a claim, what to do if you are sued, and how to increase your chance to win your case.

•Labor Law. Nov. 6. Describing your basic rights and obligations as an employee or employer, how to handle disputes, and where to go when you need help.

•Child Custody and Support. Nov. 13. Describing the procedures involved, the laws which apply, how to get a decree, and how to get a prior decree changed.

•Consumer Law. Nov. 20. Describing your rights and obligations as a buyer, how to protect and assert your rights, and how to become an informed consumer.

Illusion comes to Hult

Just when it seems that life in American theater must be very real, and the earnestness of it is very important — along comes the Black Light Theatre of Prague to remind us that theater can be something else entirely.

It can be magic, illusion, foolishness... the world turned upside down.

In its 22 years of existence, the 20-member troupe has made more than 125 international tours and has performed in nearly 40 countries.

Dressed in black from head to toe, "invisible" actors perform in front of a black "horizon." They hold and manipulate various props that appear to move about the stage under their own power. As each object is coated with a phosphorescent substance in various colors, it seems to radiate from within when illuminated by the black light. The props are not used merely as tricks, but as an integral part of the story with which the "visible" performers express meaning without words.

The Black Light Theatre of Prague performs tonight at the Hult Center for the Performing Arts. Curtain time is 8 p.m. in the Silva Concert Hall. Tickets are $13.50, $9.50 and $7. Student rush tickets are available one half hour before the show for $7, $5 and $3.75 although seating may not be available in all areas. Students must bring I.D. cards.
