Tutu returns to South Africa

SOWETO, South Africa — Anglican Bishop Desmond Tutu, preaching in a parish church for the first time since winning the 1984 Nobel Peace Prize, declared Sunday that blacks are "on our way to victory, on our way to freedom" in the struggle for equal rights in South Africa.

Tutu said he wanted to tell the ruling white minority, "If you think you can stop us, you are going to be stamped, you are going to be overrun. We don't want you to be overrun. We say: come join us, join the winning side."

Arms outstretched, eyes closed, Tutu faced 350 parishioners — a few of them whites — in the hillside church overlooking rows of shabby bungalows in this huge, sprawling, black township near Johannesburg and said of his Nobel award:

"I received this distinction on behalf of our children who are lost, our heroes in jail, those who are banned and in exile... God, we know you will lead us out of oppression and injustice to your promised land."

As he spoke, thunder rattled St. Augustine's, Tutu's home church. Many in the congregation, taking it as a good omen, laughed and applauded.

Cancer claims Truffaut at 52

PARIS — Francois Truffaut, the French film director who spearheaded New Wave cinema and won awards from Cannes to Hollywood for his portrayals of ordinary people, died Sunday of cancer at the age of 52.

Truffaut was hailed as the torchbearer of the New Wave cinema that revolutionized French filmmaking in the 1950s. He changed the face of modern cinema by transforming dialogue into spontaneous exchanges, sometimes improvised by the actors while the cameras rolled.

His best-known movies include "Fahrenheit 451" (1966), "The Last Metro" (1981) and "The Story of Adele H" (1975).

Decision near in election suit

PORTLAND — Closing arguments will be heard Monday in a legal showdown over voter registrations by followers of an Indian guru and their Oregon foes.

U.S. District Judge Edward Leavy said he hopes to rule shortly after the arguments in the case. Followers of Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh are demanding that Wasco County be forced to rescind its blanket rejection of all new voter registration applications.

Officials testifying Saturday, the second and final day of testimony in the case, said an avalanche of new voter registrations — some fraudulent — threaten to overwhelm Wasco County's elections preparations.

Oregon law allows residents to register to vote through Election Day.
