

Netters tuneup for playoffs with Washington schools

By Robert Collias
Of the Emerald

The Oregon volleyball team finishes the NorPac conference regular season this weekend with matches against Washington State University and the University of Washington at McArthur Court.

The WSU match starts at 5 p.m. today because the men's basketball game is scheduled to begin at 7:35 p.m. The Husky match will start at 7:30 p.m. at Mac Court on Saturday.

The Ducks, 7-2 in the NorPac conference and 22-10 overall, will be looking to finish the regular season on a strong note as they prepare for the conference championships at San Jose State University on November 16-17.

The top four teams in the NorPac conference will take part in the playoffs with the winner getting an automatic NCAA berth. The Ducks, ranked 13th in the latest NCAA poll, have clinched third place in the conference.

The matches against the Washington schools will not change the Ducks' place in the standings, so Oregon coach Chris Voelz sees the games as two opportunities to get ready for the upcoming NorPac playoffs.

"We are looking at this weekend's matches as preparation for postseason play," says Voelz. "We need to make sure that our players are ready for high-pressure situations."

WSU, 7-19 for the season, is out of the NorPac playoff picture with a 1-8 league record. The last time the Ducks played the Cougars, Oregon came away with an easy victory 15-3, 15-13 and 15-7.

"We beat them pretty soundly the first time around, and we have progressed a lot since then," says Voelz.

Saturday night, the Ducks meet up with Washington at 7:30 p.m. The match is a must-win for the Huskies who are tied with Oregon State University and Santa Clara University for the fourth and final NorPac playoff spot.

"We will be looking for a tough match from them because of their playoff situation," says Voelz of Washington who has a 4-5 NorPac mark.

The Ducks took a three-game win from the Huskies earlier in the season, 15-6.
