

FRIDAY'S

□The Untouchables (top photo and at right) initiated Friday's unusually exciting musical buffet. The band soon had a frenzied and over-flowing beer garden crowd gyrating next to the stage. Relying heavily on R&B and reggae influences, the Untouchables pump up their music to a bouncy beat. All members of the Friday Night Musical Fun Club gave thanks for the price of their night's entertainment: the Untouchables were free. (The band probably commands upward of $10 for their L.A. shows.) And admission for Husker Du was under $5 for both University students and the general public. Next meeting of the Musica! Fun Club will be tonight in the EMU Ballroom for the Blasters and then March 2 for the Rolling Stone critics' "band of the year" — Los Lobos.
