administrative structure allowed the team to play without having to worry about finances.

Although the team is winning, Moore and team-captain Scrafford Orser feel that it is important not to forget the reason that most of the people are on the team — to have fun.

"Last year our philosophy was to play hard and to have a good time, and that ended up putting us in first place," Orser said. "This year we have been more serious, but we are still having a fun time. The seriousness factor comes in terms of practice and being in shape."

While graduation can hurt a team, the lacrosse club was fortunate in losing only two players last June. The team welcomed a handful of transfers from around the country to strengthen the lineup.

With lopsided wins such as 21-3 over Eugene, 21-4 over Willamette and 20-6 over Washington State, the Ducks have outscored their opponents 112-30 thus far this season.

Oregon whitewashed Willamette in league play two weekends ago in Eugene and set three club scoring records in the process. Attackman Jim Stallman scored a record nine goals against the Bearcats. Fellow attackman Pete Fields dished out eight assists for a record and added two goals for a total of 10 points for another record.

Like last year, the club is strong in the second half, but being a second-half team does not bother Orser. "It's early in and with some more games under our belt we will be able to dominate the whole game. Nothing is wrong with being a second half team. We came from behind to win a couple key games last year."

This year, the club must carry the burden of being the top team. "To be a good team, we must be able to handle the pressure of being the team to beat," Orser said. "Last year we were a no-name. We were not recognized, but we came out of nowhere to beat everybody. We have to watch out for people who were like us last year."

The team's strength comes from many different factors, according to Moore and Orser. From the transfers, to the rookies, to the veterans, the team has jelled into an aggressive, dominating club.

"The most unique aspect about our program is the individuals who make up the team and how they come together to become one," Orser said. "We must have the most diverse group of people on our squad, but together, we like to win and we are good at it. We don't like to lose to anybody."

After spending April on the road, the team will play at home against Western Washington on May 4.

worked as a relief pitcher last year, and enhanced her game by playing through the summer.

Freshman Sue Voeller is the newest addition to the pitching staff, and Harlin says she's proving to be a bright prospect.

"She's ready to throw (in the NCAA's) Division I coming out of high school," says Harlin. "She throws the ball fast, yet she has the ability to move it around the plate." Voeller's competence will give the team needed pitching depth, Harlin adds.

The infield boasts a pair of talented players in Coburn and sophomore Kim Hedding, playing shortstop and second base. Sophomore Capi Lynn backs them up as an able-handed reserve. Freshman Susan Uhrich will undertake the tough task of filling the shoes of graduate Kathy Hickey at third base.

First base duties will be handled by freshman Bobbie Johnson, with Schroeder and sophomore Christi Long filling in as relief. Long will normally be behind the plate, where she is touted as one of the best catchers in the league.

"She has the abilities to make all-conference, and a catcher of her caliber is a must for a competitive team," Harlin says.

Harlin has had to patch together an outfield, and she feels she has some good material for the job. Senior Stephanie Heisler and sophomore Lesley Stine will join Schroeder (when she is not pitching) in covering the territory.

Heisler's original duties were at the pitching mound, but a shoulder injury forced her to change positions. With three years of varsity experience, she has the savvy to make the adjustment.

The team will be treated with a visit to Hawaii at the end of March. Although Hawaii creates visions of palm trees, sunny beaches and vacation relaxation, this group has a piece of work cut out for them: They will be playing in a tournament with top-ranked UCLA, Cal State-Fullerton (which holds a Top Five national ranking) and NorPac foe Fresno State.

Heisler eagerly anticipates the tournament for more reasons than one. "I've never been to Hawaii, and I've never seen UCLA play. It should be good to see the other competition."

The first home game is slated for March 17 at 1 p.m. against Oregon State. Harlin believes the match-up will be a good one since the Ducks want to go to Hawaii with a couple of wins. OSU is 2-4 on the season following an Arizona trip.

The OSU-Oregon battles usually prove to be "Civil War" treats. Former OSU coach Dennis Ahlstrom explains, "Over the past years, these games have increased in intensity." He acknowledges that the improvements in Oregon's program has aided in the increasing competition.

The Promise of Spring — Are you ready for a flood of great events and activities this Spring? Seeing so much sun this winter has given the RIM staff high hopes for a spring full of rays. Last spring, as you may recall, we were considering softball in row boats at Fern Ridge....

Intramural Softball looks good for loads of fun. Stop by the RIM office April 1 and get your entry. We are expecting over 100 entries — don't be left out. Ford is sponsoring Volleyball again this spring, and have donated enough T-shirts for us to offer them to the top four teams in each division. The RIM Golf Tournament will be at Tokatee Golf Course in May. What a deal, and all that scenery, too! Plan now to be here Memorial Weekend for the Spring Tennis Classic. It will be a dandy — we expect over 150 entries. Other events to get involved in spring include Tennis, Racquetball, Badminton, Basketball, Track and more. Come in to the RIM office and pick up a schedule of events.
