Thatcher urges Nakasone to alter 'unfair' trade rules

(AP) — British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said Sunday she had warned Japan's prime minister at the Bonn economic summit that Japan must act quickly to reform its trade policy, which she said can be so unfair it "sticks in my gullet."

But she said she fears the Japanese won't do enough to avoid retaliatory sanctions.

Thatcher spoke in a British Broadcasting Corp. radio interview one day after the end of the summit meeting, held in the West German capital by leaders of seven major industrial nations — the United States, Canada, West Germany, France, Italy, Britain and Japan.

London newspapers, whose correspondents were briefed after the summit ended, reported on Sunday that Thatcher had been exceptionally blunt with Japan's prime minister, Yasuhiro Nakasone, during their 45-minute meeting.

Thatcher said that in her talk with Nakasone, she urged prompt action to clear away bureaucratic barriers that foreign firms must overcome before they can sell in Japanese markets.

French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas said in Paris on Sunday that despite differences bared at the summit, Europeans need to be "strong, united and coordinated" in the face of the United States and Japan.

Farrakhan arrives in Tripoli, receives loan from Khadafy

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — American black activist Louis Farrakhan, who says he has received a business loan from Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy, has arrived in Tripoli, the official Libyan news agency JANA reported Sunday.

"Our visit is a reaffirmation of friendship and of the joint struggle to liberate the oppressed all over the world," Farrakhan was quoted as telling JANA when he arrived at the airport Saturday.

The report did not say if Farrakhan, leader of the Nation of Islam sect, would meet with Khadafy.

Farrakhan said Wednesday that Khadafy had granted an interest-free $5 million loan to help fund a black corporation that plans to produce a line of soaps, detergents and personal care products.

Wyden proposes waste tax

PORTLAND (AP) — The federal toxic waste disposal "Superfund" program could use a shot of common sense "Oregon ethics," according to U.S. Rep. Ron Wyden.

The 3rd District Democrat told workers at a Portland toxic waste recycling company Saturday that "right now the Superfund just moves dangerous waste from one landfill to another in a kind of toxic waste shell game."

Wyden is co-sponsoring a bill to reduce the amount of hazardous waste in landfills by providing financial incentive for companies to recycle waste or avoid creating it.

The measure Wyden helped introduce would create a "waste-end" tax on toxic wastes.

The toughest job you'll ever love

We admit it. It takes a different kind of person to be a Peace Corps volunteer.

We won't mislead you with glowing pictures of exotic lands. The hours as a volunteer are long. The pay is modest. And the frustrations sometimes seem overwhelming. But the satisfaction and rewards are immense. You'll be immersed in a new culture, become fluent in a new language, and learn far more about the third world — and yourself — than you ever expected.

You'll also discover that progress brought about by Peace Corps volunteers is visible and measurable: Such as health clinics established in the Philippines; fresh-water fish ponds constructed in Kenya; roads and schools and irrigation systems built in Upper Volta; tens of thousands of people given essential skills in farming, nutrition, the skilled trades, business, forestry, and other specialties throughout the developing world.

Being a volunteer isn't for everyone, and it isn't easy, but to the people of the developing nations who have never before had basic health care or enough to eat, the Peace Corps brings a message of hope and change.

We invite you to look into the volunteer opportunities beginning in the next 3-12 months in Africa, Asia, Latin America, and the Pacific. Our representatives will be pleased to provide you with details.
