Goodbyes make money

Some people are paranoid about receiving a fateful "Dear John" from their sweethearts while others pray for a goodbye letter in the mail to release them from a clinging relationship.

Whether you've been the writer or receiver of a "Dear John," there's bound to be a skeleton memory or two hanging around in the closet of your mind about a love gone by.

Shaffer Fox wants to publish a goodbye letter from every state in the nation in an upcoming book titled, "How We Say 'Goodbye Forever' in the U.S."

As of yet, he hasn't received any submissions from Oregon. He's offering $5 for every letter accepted and $25 upon publication. Letters so far have ranged from sad to funny to downright bizarre.

Send your letter, with an explanation of the romance and why it ended, to Goodbye Forever, P.O. Box 1015, Owasso, Mich., 48867. Specific information will either be eliminated or changed to protect the author.
